EUCLID SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL
711 East 222 Street
Euclid, Ohio

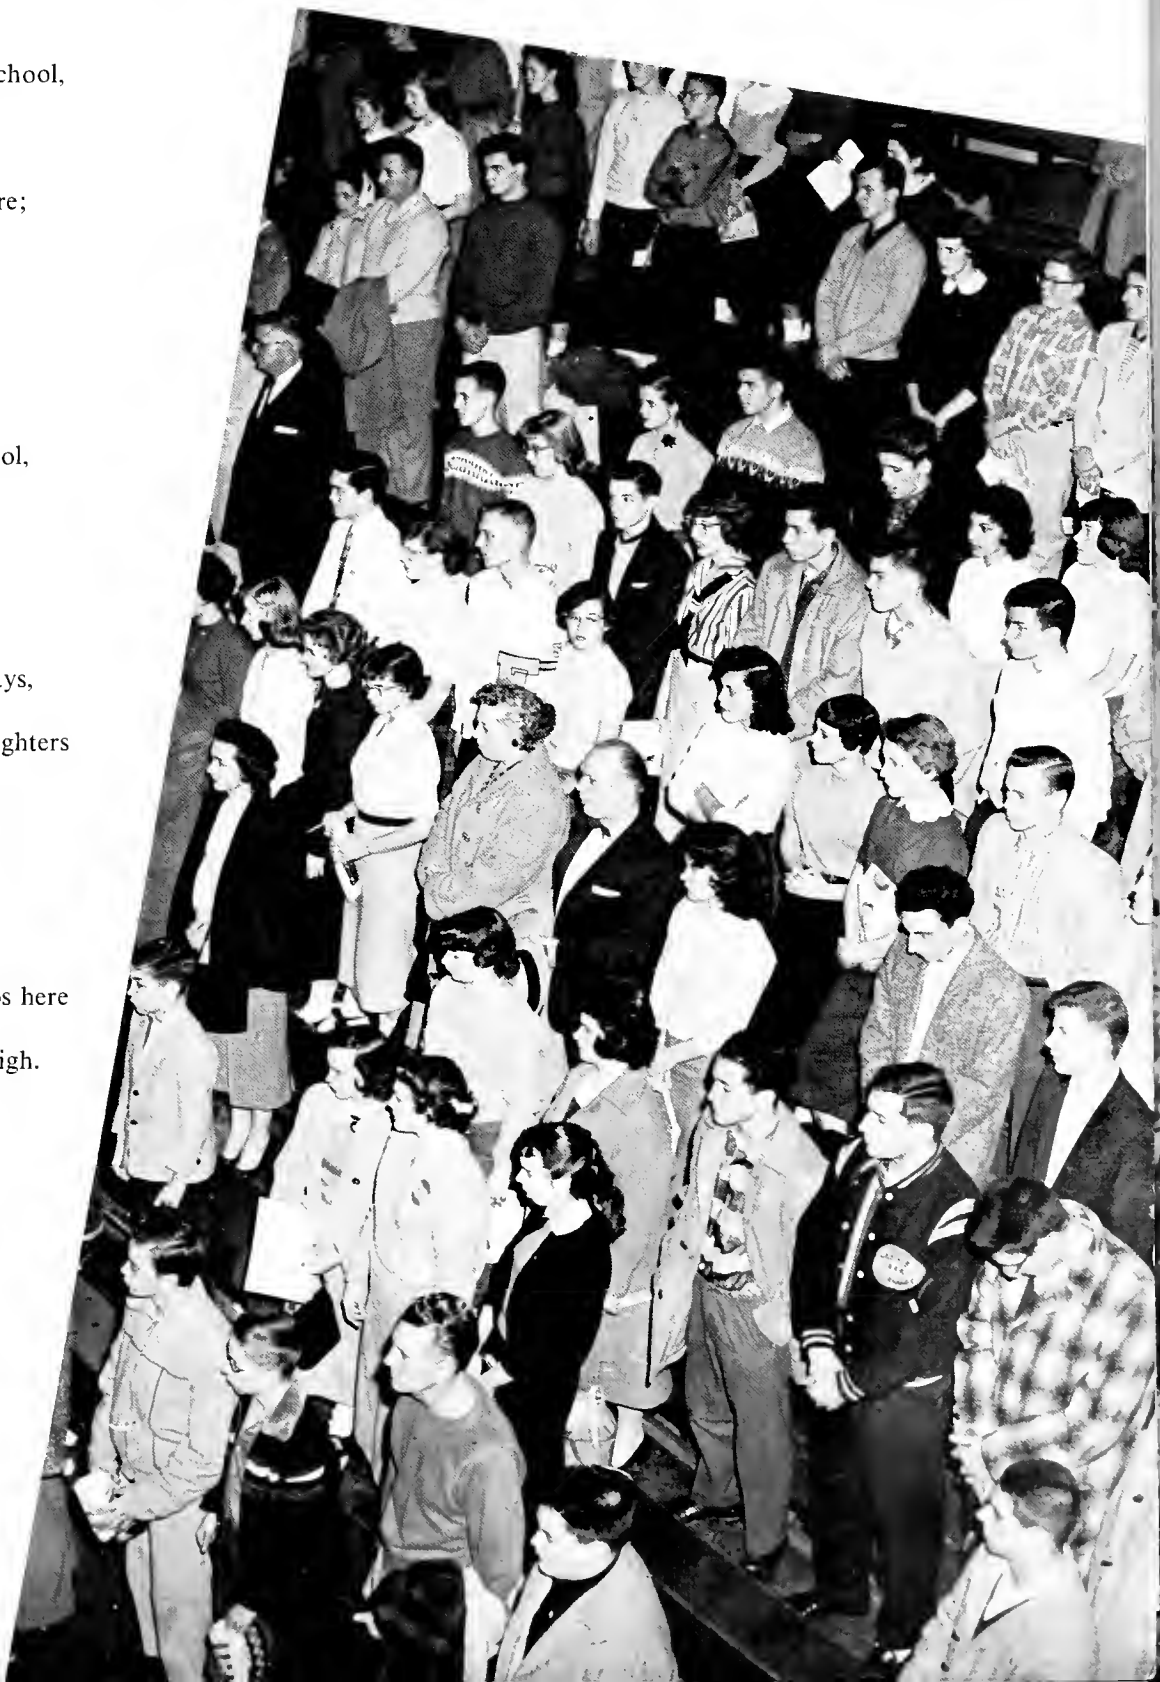

Within us all burns the flame of life, kindled by our Creator as we began our existence on earth. This tiny, glowing spark was given to us with the faith that we would assume the responsibility of feeding it, nourishing the flame from within, enabling it to radiate a warmer glow to our companions. In turn, this progress is not limited to our physical structures, but entails the development of our minds and souls. Though we were all fashioned by His hands, each of us is a unique creation, endowed with the blessing of individuality. Following this pattern, our development varies as we pass through the many phases of our lives. Our parents and friends, our environment, our religious beliefs, our ideals: all these encourage the flame to burn with more intensity and independence—without them it would flicker and eventually die. Believing it to be the key that opens the door to countless opportunities in life, we, the yearbook staff, dedicate the 1958 Euclidian to the growth and development of the individual, the backbone of the modern world.

DEDICATION

ALMA MATER

Hail to Thee, O Euclid High School,
To thy name all praise we sing.
Happy days of youthful pleasure;
Learning, living, life so dear,
Our hearts fill with gratitude
For all that is to be—
Alma Mater, Euclid High School,
All our praise we bring to thee.

Where the blue of Erie's waters
Casts the sun's bright golden rays,
There all Euclid's sons and daughters
Sing the joys of student days.
If after days be dark and drear
And storms of life draw nigh,
The memories of our friendships here
Will life our hearts to Euclid High.

In every structure there is a cornerstone, the block upon which the entire construction is dependent.

Occupying this significant position in our city is Euclid Glenville Hospital. Here is an establishment representative of the humane way of life which is backed by countless citizens.

These adults of our community are constantly striving to improve our hospital, but along with them are many teens, conscious of their responsibilities, who volunteer their time and services. These volunteers dedicate a small but important part of their lives assisting nurses and taking their cheer and youthful exuberance into the patients' rooms. In earlier years it was not unusual to find these same volunteers gritting their teeth while one of the doctors took a few stitches in a battered forehead or wrapped a plaster-cast around a broken arm. All through the maturing years, Euclid Glenville has stood at attention ready to mend broken bodies or serve as a symbol of true service and unselfish sacrifice.

From hands filled with the tenderness of parental care into the guiding charge of dedicated teachers, the young child takes his first steps on the long road of development and education. Wide-eyed and innocent, he soon understands that all classmates are his friends and each is sharing in this unique adventure. He acquires vast experiences and associations with the help of teachers or qualified senior high students, who are gaining a background in teaching. Through their efforts he gradually discovers his ability to reason. Even with this new-found power he is unaware of the vast program which has been carefully planned to build a sound foundation for the years ahead, a program which will pour knowledge into this young bud until it blossoms forth as a flower of maturity.

This fire station, like all others in the world, holds fascination and delight for everyone, especially young children. Hardly a day goes by without a group of bubbling, energetic youngsters, homeward bound from school, stopping to gaze in awe at the bright, shiny, red-faced fire engine. The young boy visualizes himself as a fire chief and thinks only of the thrill of riding the speeding truck with its shrieking siren. The danger our firemen face and the inconveniences they bear never enters his mind. His dreams slowly fade as he approaches maturity, for he begins to appreciate fully the responsibility these men willingly accept—the responsibility of saving homes and people, and keeping the dreams of little boys alive.

An idol in any small boy's eyes is the blue uniformed policeman. Until he has matured, this boy probably will never realize the influence this police force has upon his life. Upon the shoulders of these men rest not only the responsibility to protect but also the responsibility to insure peace of mind within the community. As the young child becomes acquainted with this protecting part of our community, he begins to realize the necessity for self-acquired standards which will help him in his decisions between right and wrong. With these decisions made, he discovers that the laws he once thought were to punish were made only to protect. In his matured eyes he sees the police as a means to keep security in his home and peace in his community.

Man alone is an inadequate being, subject to the limitations of humanity. Early in his development, it becomes clear to him that if he is to live a fruitful life, he must learn to escape the confining naturalness of this world and to grasp a supreme, intangible power. Regardless of his choice of faith, this force becomes a living part of him, born and encouraged within; significant to him as his private communion with this spiritual influence. The value of this trust becomes more noticeable to him each day of life, for it provides that essential assurance of peace of mind and soul, nowhere to be found upon this earth.

In this high-strung society of ours, life often becomes so complex that treasured moments of peace and seclusion come only when we force ourselves to pause; to stop and breathe the magnificence of Nature and her Creator. Once an individual can marvel at the wonderment of Nature and exclude the tensions of today, he has overcome a looming barrier in his path of progress. He will then be able to appreciate and discover the restfulness found in solitude with the untouched earth, bursting forth with its natural enchantment and simplicity. This drink of serenity and tranquillity can urge him to continue, to conquer what seemed the impossible.

Memorial Pool, a symbol of co-operative labor, is a scene of beauty and enjoyment for all from 5 to 65. The pool, situated among shady trees and an inviting picnic area, was finished in 1954 mainly for the benefit of Euclid's hundreds of children. Healthy recreation, fun, and relaxation can all be found at this refreshing pool, glimmering in the sunlight. During the morning hours individuals can combine education with recreation when they take swimming lessons taught by high school volunteers. The child's growth in the summer, as well as during the remainder of the year, can be attributed to his parents, teachers, and these community leaders who have the never-ending job of molding this young life for the years ahead.

The small pond right in back of Memorial Pool is always surrounded by two synonymous items—children and laughter. Any kind of boat from a piece of bark to a gasoline-powered, sleek-hulled motor boat can be found skimming the top of the shallow pond. The most enjoyable moments, though, occur when there is a nip in the air and a hard, thick sheet of ice is waiting to have its back scratched with any size skates from 3 to 13. The individual finds real enjoyment in these activities, since they show him a perfect outlet to release the stored-up energies which come with growing up.

Window shopping, an ever popular pastime of both boys and girls, fills the leisure hours of students as they dream of future years in high school and college. That white formal would be just perfect for the senior prom, and gee, look at that "crazy" matching tie and cummerbund! The youth of today are filled with dreams for the future which will make our community truly great when they reach the age to fulfill these goals. Planning for tomorrow, the youth of today will continue to widen the path of progress in Euclid's business and industry.

A brightly glowing core in the dense darkness, Lake Shore Boulevard's business district dominates the night scene in Euclid. Many separate stores which line this boulevard have merged into one huge development with the single purpose of serving the citizens of our community. Youngsters dreaming of that special red bike and adults just doing the weekly shopping can all be found in this mixture of trades. To most people this everyday scene is taken for granted, but to be without it our community would be incomplete. The boulevard, the stores, and the lights are tangible structures proving man's great ability to create and to make his dreams become realities.

There comes a time in the development of each person when he must abandon infant attitudes and begin to take upon a more mature way of life. One day he leaves elementary school and enters junior high where he learns that it is essential to surrender childishness, for here is a new world, one where the goal of adulthood is not far in the future. No longer will one special teacher be there to hold his hand, to rescue him when he gets into trouble. Self-reliance must be acquired; responsibility must be studied, approved, and accepted. His conscience becomes a magnificent tool, for the moments will be frequent when he will rely upon its discreetness to lead the way. The individual is at this time in the midst of development; this is his opportunity to experience a bit of non-restricted activity. He is rapidly discovering that defeats are urges to try harder, and achievements are triumphs. With infancy behind, he is ready to pass through three more years of progress in his expanding background.

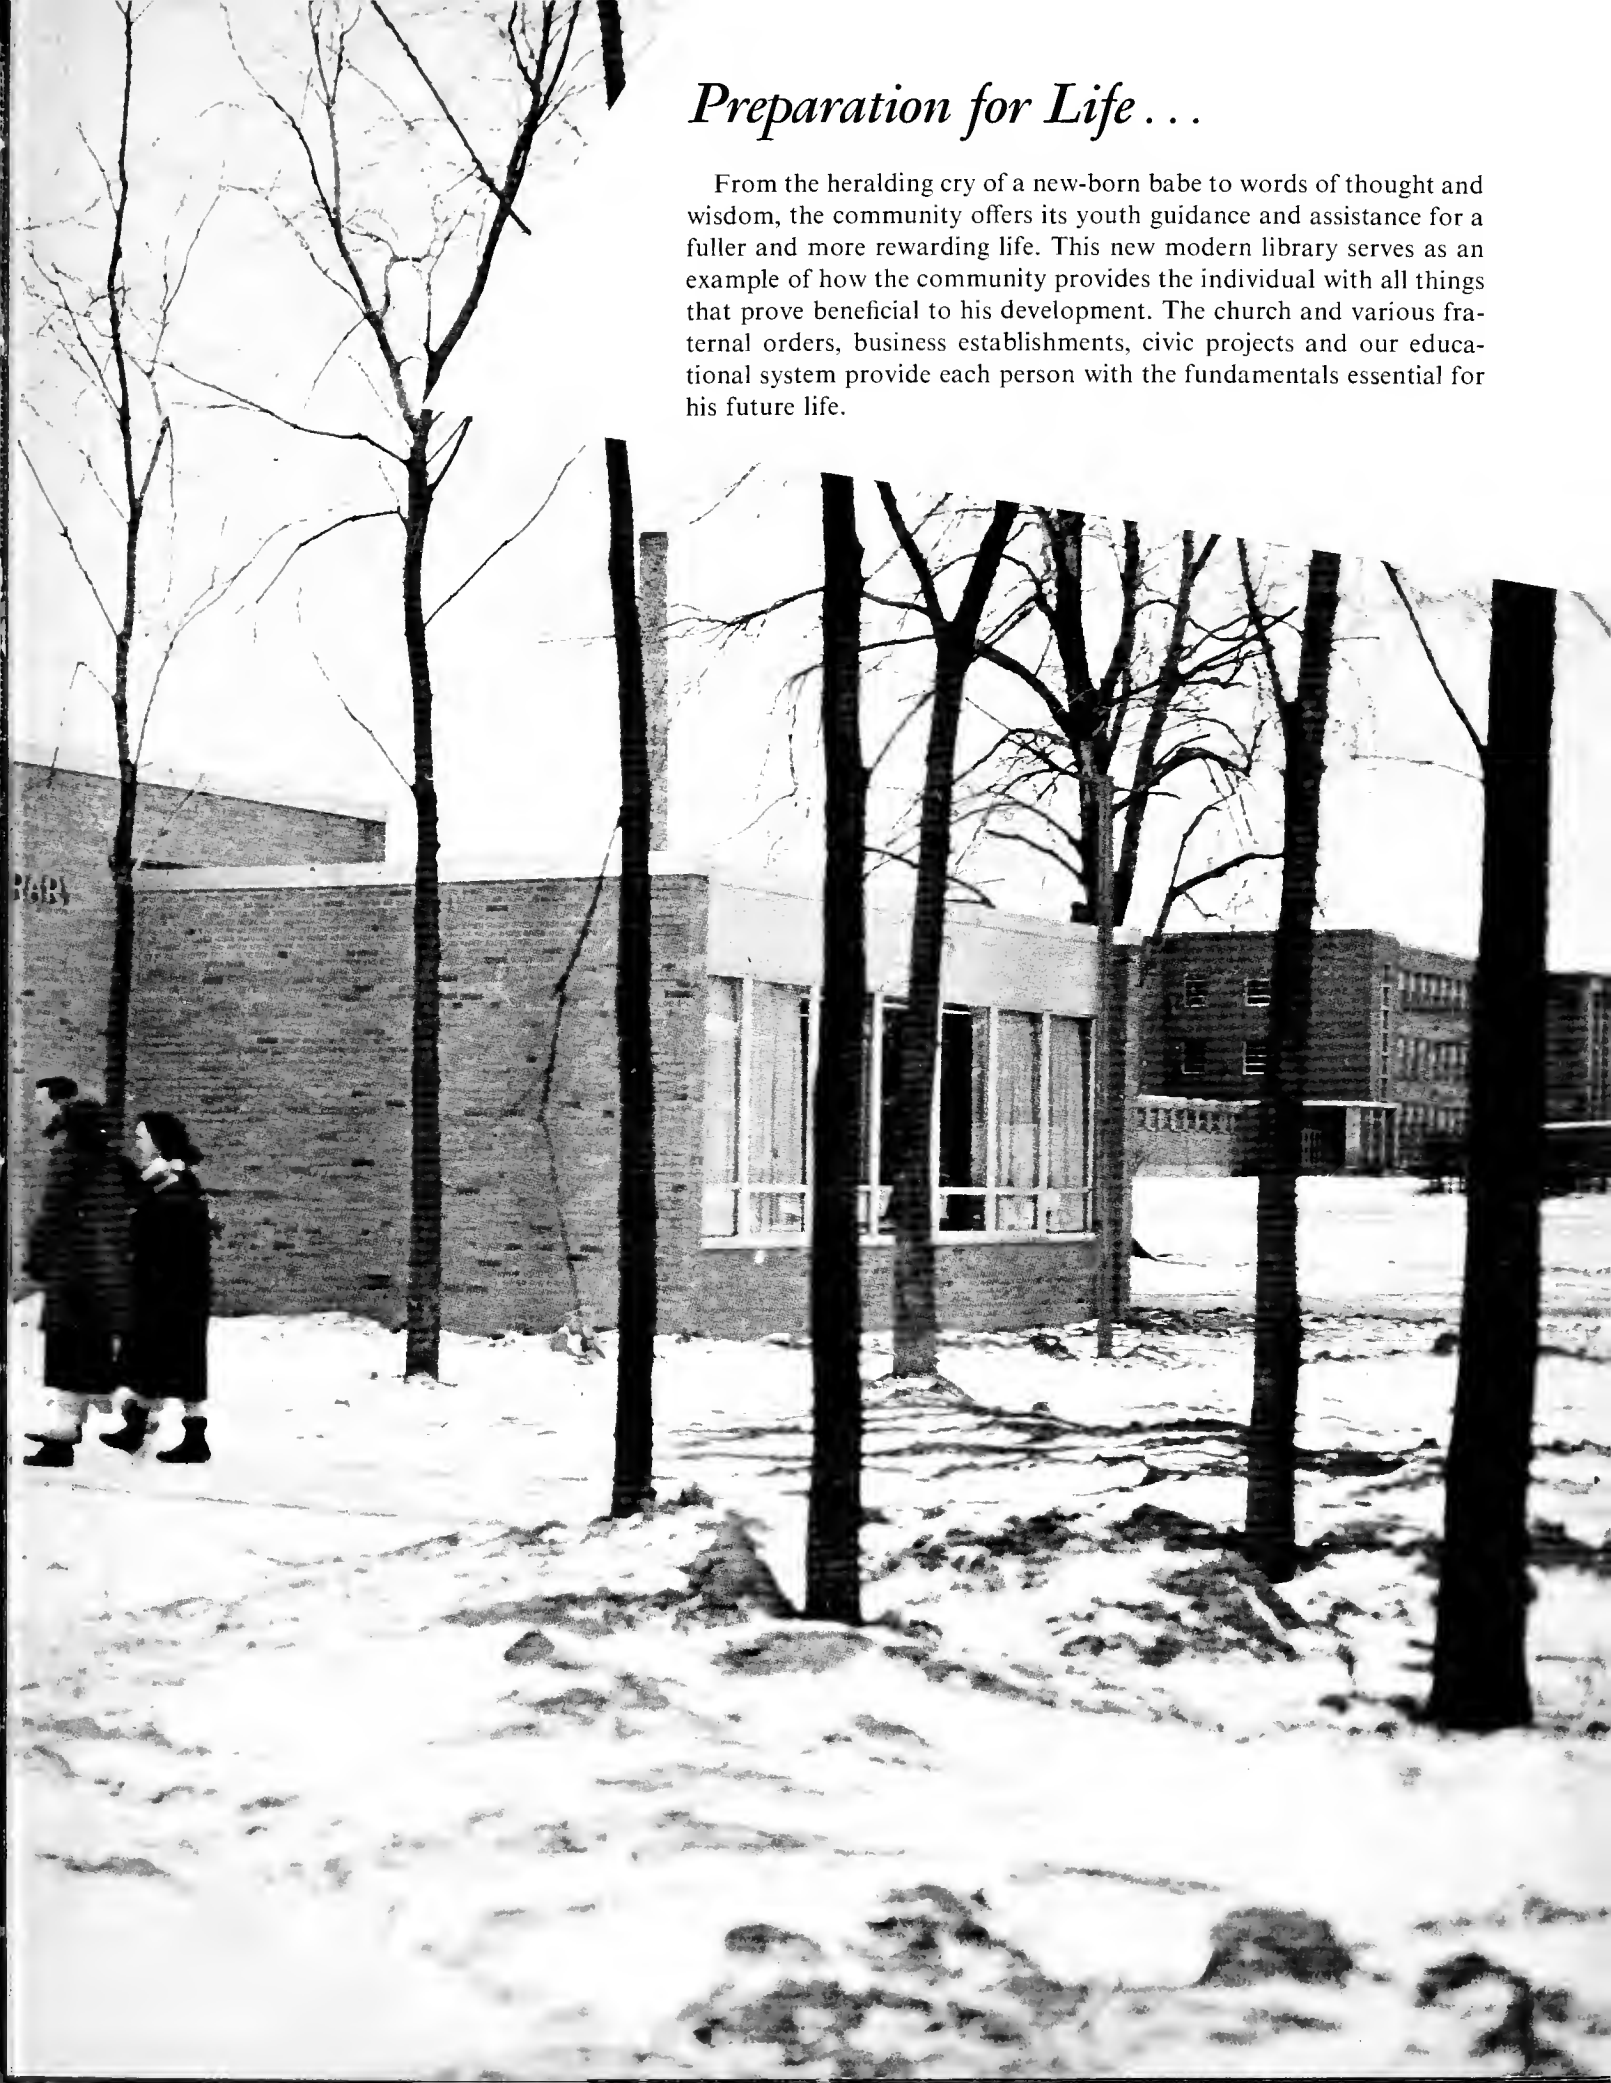

A journey into the unknown, where either success or failure may await, lies ahead of these individuals. With pride, anxiety, and rather frightened expectations, they are embarking on a new and challenging adventure; life at Euclid Senior High School. All through their earlier years they have been in contact with the varied public services of our community. Each of these has had its own specific duty to perform and has taken its place in the program of development for these students. Now, another milestone is slipping into position. Three years lie ahead, three years in which to mold their character to their own specifications, to those of their God, and of their fellowman. During this span of time they will sight their goals and choose the most desirable path of attainment.

Frequently, these young students will enjoy the splendor of success, and more than once they will reluctantly be forced to taste the bitterness of defeat. Innumerable situations will arise when they will have to stand witness of their beliefs, overcoming the temptations to surrender to conformity. But these are only scant examples of the experiences of these short years, during which these maturing minds will be driving incessantly, advancing even more toward individual perfection. They are now launched on the journey which will lead them into the many tributaries of life; They will be prepared for the future, they will be filled with activities for their leisure time, their cultural aspects in life will be developed, and they will learn to live in a school of many as one.

Preparation for Life . . .

From the heralding cry of a new-born babe to words of thought and wisdom, the community offers its youth guidance and assistance for a fuller and more rewarding life. This new modern library serves as an example of how the community provides the individual with all things that prove beneficial to his development. The church and various fraternal orders, business establishments, civic projects and our educational system provide each person with the fundamentals essential for his future life.

Concentration and Construction . . . Progress

Industrious students find the library the perfect spot for study.

Striving to give the students the best facilities possible, the teachers, library staff, office workers, and even construction workers labored day and night for their young dependents, their students. Desiring the best possible equipment for the advancement of education, both mentally and physically, these adults did all they could for others, for their city and country. Classrooms were furnished with maps and any other visual aids needed. The library and its more than 12,000 books, and efficient, friendly, willing-to-help staff was a place for study or after school enjoyment. Separate class home-room teachers had regular meetings trying to increase the value of guidance sessions. Ideal conditions will be made more useful and productive for future students. With the future in mind, with the comfort of the teachers and students a guiding factor, the officials provided places for relaxation and wholesome social life.

Informal class-level meetings clear up problems and improve curriculum.

Construction progressed but many difficulties prevented use of the classrooms until fall.

Anything from cut slips to semester grades were brought to the main office by faculty members.

FACULTY

Euclid High faculty members, influencing factors in the life of every student, constantly give of themselves and their time trying to lend a helping hand to any student in need. Since these adults are our guardians for numerous hours every week, the student's future life and actions are influenced by the teacher and his convictions. Actions in thought, opinions, and character are developed and nurtured through the reasoning of a teacher.

Not only do our teachers supply us with our education but they also volunteer their services at extra-curricular events as sponsors or as chaperones. After-game dances, dinners, proms, and committee meetings fall into their crowded schedule day after day. Although they find time to provide some of our social life, they have not overlooked their own enjoyable moments. Lunch periods, free periods, Christmas parties, picnics, and the daily conversation in the mail room is evidence of their leisure time and friendships.

Laughs and lessons of studies and life are constantly being mixed in the proper proportions to truly prepare us for life, to prepare us for the best future a secondary school can develop.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

C. E. Bowman, Mrs. Grace Watkins, Russell Glass, Mrs. Mary King, Paul Reynolds.

DR. WELLINGTON G. FORDYCE

The basic philosophy of the Euclid Schools has been to try to provide every boy and girl the opportunity to develop to the greatest possible extent his abilities, talents, and personality.

Our community has generously supported its public schools. This support implies the belief of American citizens in the end product of the schools—a citizen who has learned self-discipline, study, application, and responsibility. All of these things are not a result of classroom experience. A pupil's home, the influence of his church, and the local government as well as the schools play a part in it.

The fourth R in American education is responsibility. This responsibility is to one's family, one's church, and to one's country—from the smallest segment in the local community to the national level. Your teachers, your parents, your church, and all Americans join in expressing their confidence in the young people who graduate from our schools. We know that they will meet this responsibility, that they will do it without compulsion and because it is essential to American growth and security. We express our confidence in your ability to meet every new challenge.

Our best wishes go with you.

Sincerely yours,
W. G. Fordyce
Superintendent of Schools

The home, church and school have the privilege of, and responsibility for, providing an environment in which each of you can develop your innate potentiality through first hand and vicarious experience. The community transmits the cultural heritage to each succeeding generation through the medium of experience.

Your parents, religious leaders, and teachers have sought to inculcate in you the values, ideals, and principles needed for the fullest possible development of each individual living in a free democratic world.

As good American citizens, we hope you will cherish and seek to perpetuate the values of our Judaic-Christian tradition and of our American democratic heritage. In cooperation with the home and church, the American public education system fosters those values.

Assistant Superintendent

Dr. Lester E. Angene

You have just completed an important step in your growth as an individual. Graduation is always a pleasant time in life; school has been filled with pleasant associations and friends. You have been fortunate because of the interest your family, church, school, and community have had in your development as a good citizen.

Best wishes and good luck.

As the years pass you will become increasingly aware of the great part teachers have played in your growth to maturity. Sometime in the future, as you leaf through this book of memories, why not take time to drop a note to some of those who have helped you set your course, so that they may share your joys and successes.

BRUCE GRAHAM

It is no trite statement that the home, the church, and the school are the three institutions which contribute most to the growth of the individual. They are the major forces in his environment which influences his living now and guide him in his future endeavors.

As the years pass I am sure that you will realize more and more how fortunate you were to have lived in Euclid and to have graduated from Euclid Senior High School. This is a community where people care about their young folks. This is exemplified in the many opportunities here for recreation, spiritual growth, and education.

We, in the schools, believe that each student should have the opportunity to develop to the utmost his potentialities. Your high school is dedicated to the democratic principles of a free people who believe that education is for all and not for just the chosen few.

Growth comes from within and the will to do is personal. The opportunities are without limit to those who prepare themselves and never stop growing.

This yearbook is well planned. It exhibits hours of thoughtful enterprise. It is an excellent production. Congratulations to the faculty sponsor and the student staff.

Best wishes to the class of 1958.

Sincerely,
Clifford G. Owens
Principal

Congratulations to the class of 1958. During your three years there has been much scientific and social development in this world. This book records your progress and development. You should be proud of it. During your years at Euclid you have contributed to the academic achievement of the school. You have been a part of the athletic championships, and you have seen your musical organizations earn honors.

Your community is vitally interested in you, and has contributed to your development. It expects much of you. Assume your civic responsibilities. You will not fail.

Assistant Principal

WILLIAM A. HUNTER

The pleasure and joy you will experience in the years to come will be enhanced with the memories of your school days at Euclid High. You have watched our new addition being built and have helped with suggestions for the use of the social room. Your many contributions will help the underclass members.

Congratulations and best wishes to all of you and may you have happiness and success in the years to come.

Dean of Girls

JERRY BERGEM

Your successful development as an individual and as a citizen is the result of many influences. Your home, church, and community, as well as your school, contribute to your physical, intellectual and emotional growth. It is almost impossible to determine where the influence of one institution stops and the other begins. They each have a unique part to play in your development.

In particular, your school has provided the opportunity for you to acquire essential facts and intellectual skills. It has also helped you learn important personal skills and attitudes.

As a person who has just recently moved to Euclid, I believe that you are fortunate to have been able to attend a high school like Euclid Senior High School. You are also fortunate to be living in a community where the people believe it is important to promote your best spiritual, intellectual, and personal development.

William A. Hunter
Assistant Principal

HARRIET M. SHEATS

The environment of an individual consists of his church, home and school. The contribution of the church goes on throughout an individual's life. The family contribution gives a sense of security and guidance to his or her children. We in the school complete the triangle of the environment. Those individuals who are graduating will have the community and workaday world substituted for the school.

Congratulations to the class of 1958.

Jerry Bergem
Dean of Boys

NURSE

Helen Wise, R.N.

Whether it was a sudden headache, an errand for material for a teacher in distress, or the need of one of our students for special help, it was down to the administration corridor, the nucleus of school activity. The ailing student found his way into the office of Mrs. Wise, our nurse, who had an infallible method for sorting those "test" tube cases from her actual patients. For the others, it was to the main office where the secretaries were always willing to help, and a call to the Euclid Board of Education would connect us with Pupil Personnel. The nurse, secretaries, and the Pupil Personnel staff each made life at Euclid more enjoyable in their own individual ways.

CLASSES

The classroom is the heart of education, here is where ignorance is discarded in favor of wisdom. Within these walls the actual process of education takes place—here, the instructor teaches and the student learns; here, the smallest desire to accept the art of knowledge is encouraged to expand; here, the experienced strive to guide the inexperienced. Although this thirst for knowledge has a different intensity in each student and the desire to teach also exists in varying degrees within each teacher, a perfect balance is nevertheless maintained. Remarkable also, is the strange transition which takes place in many classrooms, for often times the instructor actually learns, being taught indirectly by his pupils.

Here at Euclid, whether the subject at hand was world history, math, chemistry, or language; whether the course centered on the text, discussion, or visual aids, the purpose of advancement of knowledge remained the same. Our classes provided a stable scholastic foundation for higher education, and while doing so revealed to both student and teacher a wider realm of personal progress and satisfaction.

"You mean you still don't understand?"

X marks the answer in advanced algebra, and many times it was as difficult to find as the X that marked the hidden spot. Any algebra student will vouch for this as he used page after page of paper and sharpened pencil after pencil in his search for that single unknown factor. But the triumphant feeling when the answer was found far surpassed any sensation Captain Kidd himself could have felt upon discovering a huge chest of buried treasure.

Of course, my students are safe, courteous drivers.

Whether the marker is hit or missed when students attempt to parallel park, our driving teachers remain cool, calm and collected. But much to the students' dismay, whenever a marker is hit, it has to be taken into the wood shop and fixed by the person who broke it, along with an explanation of the accident. Learning to parallel park is only one of the skills taught to produce safe, courteous drivers. All necessary fundamentals from changing tires to learning the laws of the highway are taught until they become second nature.

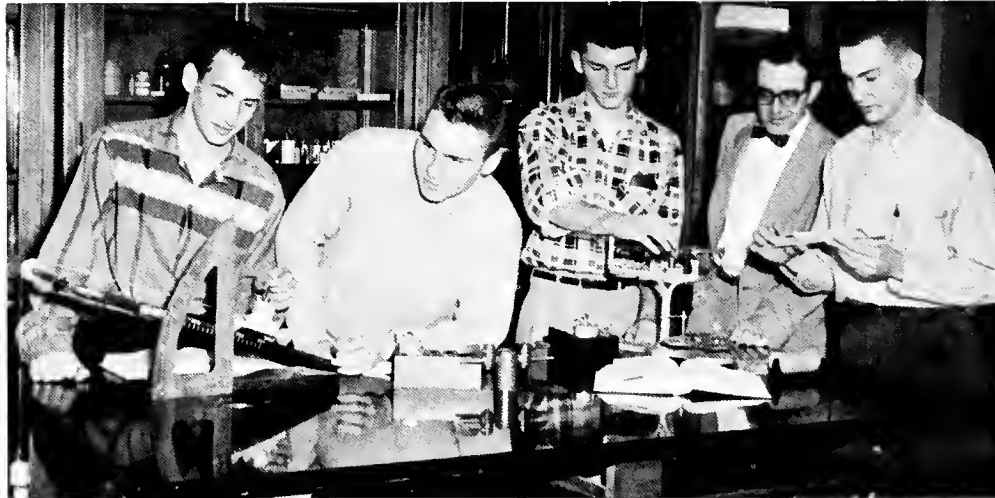

Greeted with "¿Como esta Usted, Señor?" as they walked into class, the Spanish students entered into a world where the words couldn't be pronounced and the sentences were backward.

Progressing from beginning of semester snaps like "El burro es animal." to end of semester sticklers like "El burro es animal grande.", the would-be students were bewitched, bothered and bewildered by conjugating verbs and declining nouns. It wasn't all backward sentences and verbs, though. Mr. Vaccariello took his classes on fanciful trips through Spain and South America, and Miss Bridges' Spaniards read about Juan Peron in "La Prensa."

Ésto es Señor "Little Abner."

Although the chemistry classes always took the blame, Euclid's physics students many times contributed to the contaminated air with fumes of short circuits in an analysis of electricity. These future scientists could picture Galileo leaning from the Leaning Tower of Pisa, as they too studied the laws of falling bodies. But physics opened a new world to them, to be explored and conquered.

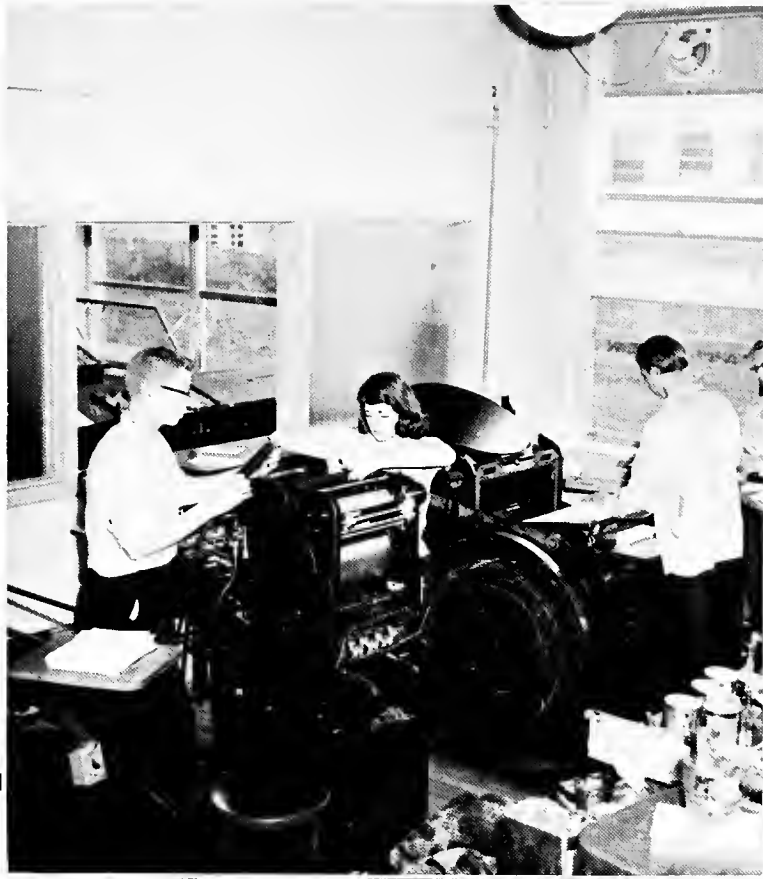

Slide rule, scale, inclined plane . . . it won't work.

At least one person didn't like Shakespeare.

Clauses and phrases, poetry and pros; this is the field of discussion in Mr. Blackburn's English classes. Enjoyment accompanies learning, learning to speak fluently, to read and write correctly; to prepare the student for those tough, competitive years at college or at work. These English classes will long be remembered with gratitude for the invaluable knowledge acquired there. Here at Euclid, skilled teachers help build a firm foundation which insures a literate future for the student.

Ink-stained hands and tempora-painted clothes; the trials and tribulations of the printer and the artist. Hands were trained to be steady and exact for both skills, for only novices printed crooked columns or drew ill-proportioned lines. Whether it was play tickets or football programs, the printers had to be on the ball with the correct letter formation. And signals couldn't be crossed in the art room either, for there was the possibility of a teacher's intercepting and passing out a poor grade. This year both departments rang up a fine average—more wins than losses.

Printing classes help the Survey meet their deadline.

Craft classes think life is just one hunk of clay after another.

Four young Euclid mechanics take the first steps in dismantling a carburetor.

Euclid woodworkers learn that good craftsmen work neat.

As the toddler tore apart his rattle to see what made it tick, as the ten-year-old nailed and sawed on an old block of wood, so Euclid High young men continued the male tradition by specializing in industrial arts. In wood shop, the boys accumulated a knowledge of carpentry in their minds and a surplus of sawdust in their shoes; while tail pipes were replaced by auto mechanics when trips around corners, even in this day and age, must be made on four wheels. This department helped their interest in industry grow from childplay into a useful, adult skill.

"Teacher, I think it is alive!"

"Teacher, you don't mean to say that THIS is the same water we drink?" This was the cry of many terrified students as they took their first look at that "awful looking stuff I've been drinking all these years." Then there were days when real trouble arose as someone began cutting up again. With anxious, greedy looks, the boys were quick to ask whether it was frog, fish, or worm day while those of the weaker sex grasped the nearest desk with a muffled moan. One consolation girls . . . the "insides" don't show, except in biology.

"Oh, just one more drop."

All the world's a test tube and all that's necessary are a few chemicals inside of it to promise experiences that end with a bang! Many E. H. S. chemistry students found that to be true this year as they brewed concoctions that would put many witches' potions to shame. Frequently there were days when the third floor was absolutely uninhabitable due to the lingering odor of the experimental efforts of our future scientists. It took countless gray hairs on the part of the teachers before some students learned that every gram counts.

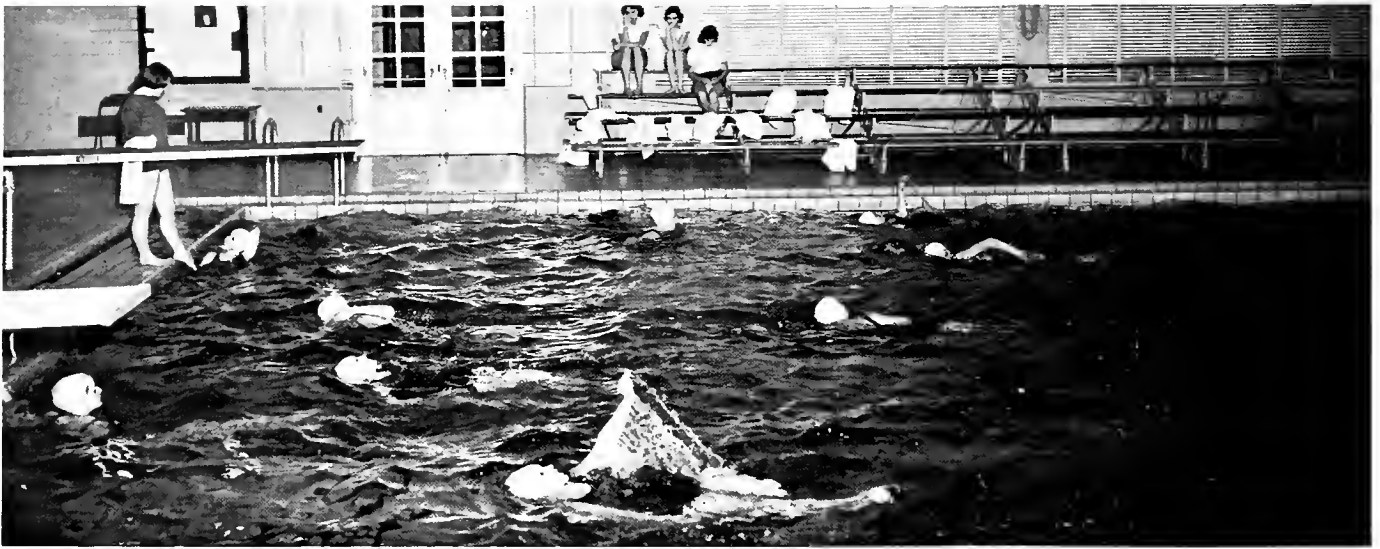

Mrs. Dise keeps her students on pins and needles.

Whirring machines, bobbin' bobbins, sewn fingers and exhausted teachers were all a part of Euclid's sewing classes. It didn't take long for the typical Miss Sew and Sew to realize that it was the stitch in time that counted. Chatting over thimble and thread, the modern seamstresses passed the first goal of making cotton skirts and went on to the more complicated processes of matching checks in a plaid blouse and developing original patterns. It was also not too unusual to see one of the girls practically going cross-eyed trying to thread a needle with thread larger than the eye in the needle. But this course actually paved the way for well-adjusted and happy home for the future.

Are you sure you lit the oven, and did you say one teaspoon or one tablespoon of salt?

There was quite a mix-up in the cooking rooms when the lady chefs of Euclid High learned how to make a better home-on-a-range. Though they could often be found in a stew over such items as how many teaspoons of this ingredient and at what temperature do you bake that, the girls almost always came up with a luscious end product. It was not unusual to find heads popping in the door to ask what that delectable odor was that was trailing down the hall. But the cooks worked on with a thought to their motto, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," and a little bit of dreaming about the future.

Heil!

Oh, shoot.

A glimpse of Euclid's pool during a typical school day would find one of the swim cadets teaching and drilling the swimming class on the various strokes and skills. Words and motions are repeated over and over until the new swimmer can finally splash his way on to a more difficult phase of instruction. And when the bell rings, it's out of the water in full-fashioned suits, and back to class with bloodshot eyes, droopy curls, and clogged up ears as reminders of this swim class which helps us in our physical development.

Whenever inventory is taken in the boys' gym, undoubtedly they will find some girls' equipment. Sometimes the girls shoot rather high and instead of swishing into a basket, the ball sails over the partition and is promptly seized by the boys. Boys' gym activities, including basketball, tumbling, track, and swimming, provide a well-rounded athletic program of physical development for the boys under the direction of Coaches Swackhamer, Mohr, Calvert, and Donaldson.

Laughter, tears, and various emotions derived from acting are practiced in dramatics classes under the direction of Mr. Jenkins. Students may be asked to impersonate anything—a dog, a cow, or even a teacher. Doing this correctly without reacting to fellow students' laughter is not easy, either. Dramatic classes develop poise, speaking ability, imagination, and grace. They are interesting, enjoyable, but most of all, beneficial to all who participate.

Don't worry, it's only a choke.

One of Euclid's more serious types.

Always minding their own business and learning how to do it correctly, Euclid's typists worked earnestly to acquire the valuable knowledge offered them. Though the clicking of the keys and the clanging of the carriage bell often echoed in their sleep, they were ready each day with clean paper, fresh carbon, and their so helpful assistant, the typing eraser. But their biggest aid was the desire to successfully conquer the masterful typewriter.

This is the way it's done.

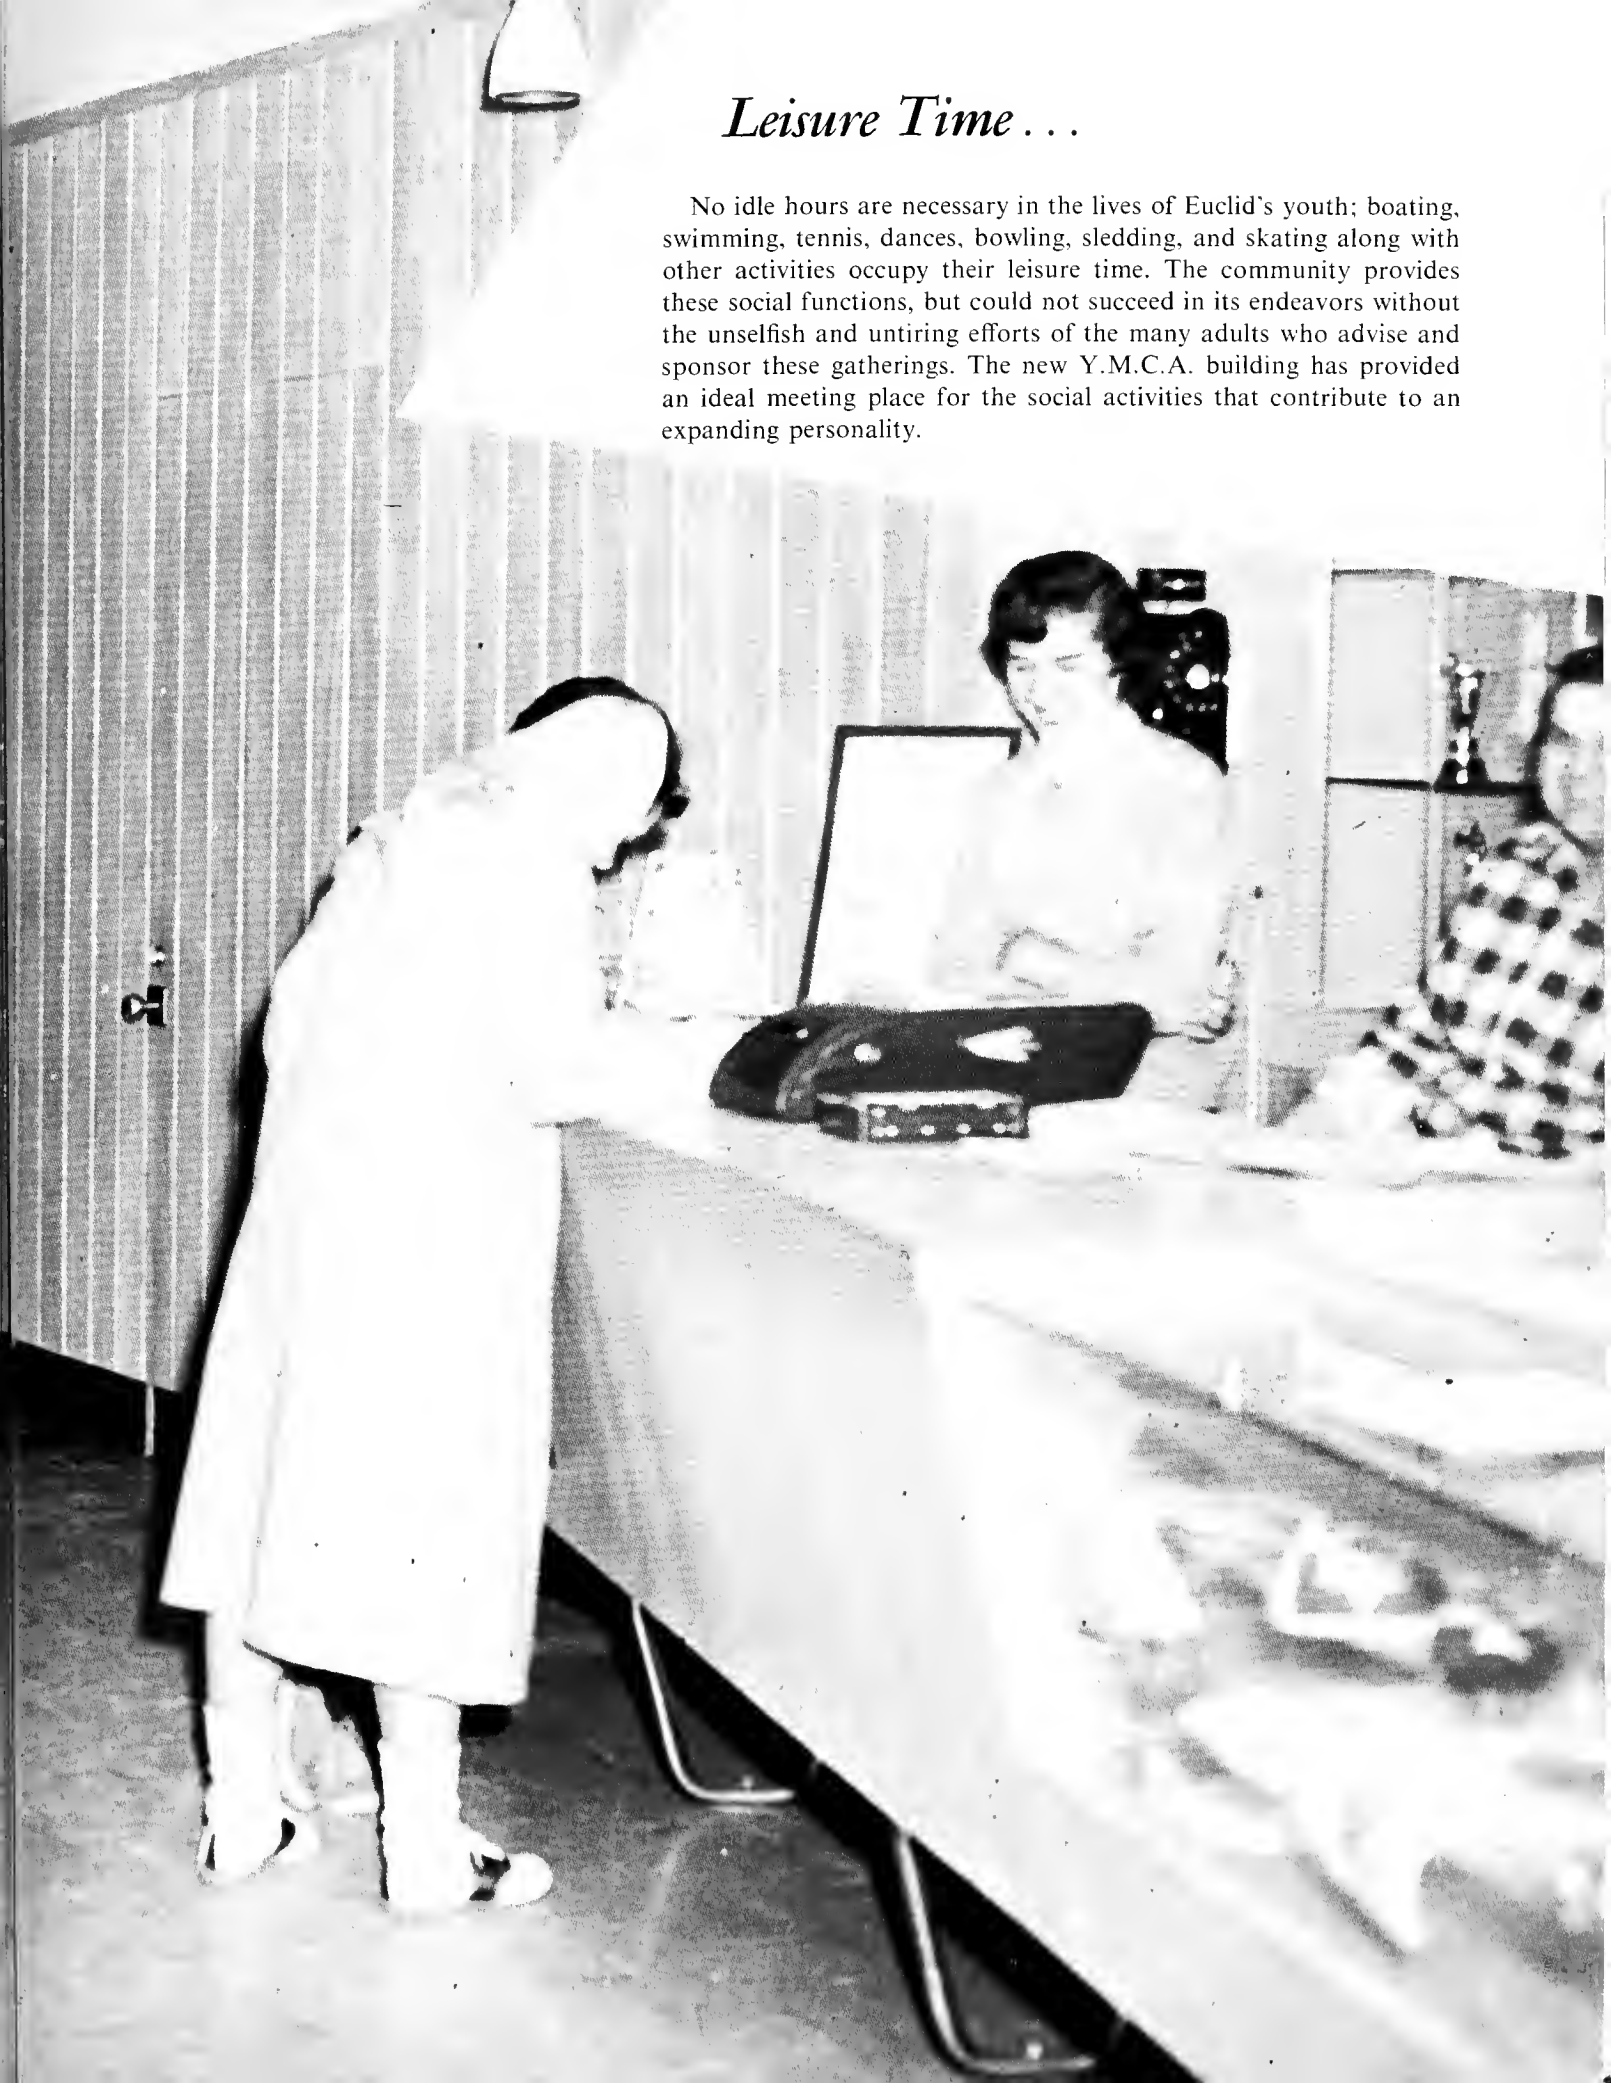

Work, work, work . . . run off some ditos, type out a stencil, adjust the earphones on the dictaphone, and don't forget to plug in the electric typewriter! Without the help of the girls, teachers would find it difficult to issue additional information to their classes. This practice is beneficial to the "secretaries," though, for this is a sample of what their future jobs will involve. They learn to accomplish work quickly, accurately, and neatly. With new, up-to-date, and easy-to-operate machinery, students feel certain of being employed with adequate salaries.

Leisure Time . . .

No idle hours are necessary in the lives of Euclid's youth; boating, swimming, tennis, dances, bowling, sledding, and skating along with other activities occupy their leisure time. The community provides these social functions, but could not succeed in its endeavors without the unselfish and untiring efforts of the many adults who advise and sponsor these gatherings. The new Y.M.C.A. building has provided an ideal meeting place for the social activities that contribute to an expanding personality.

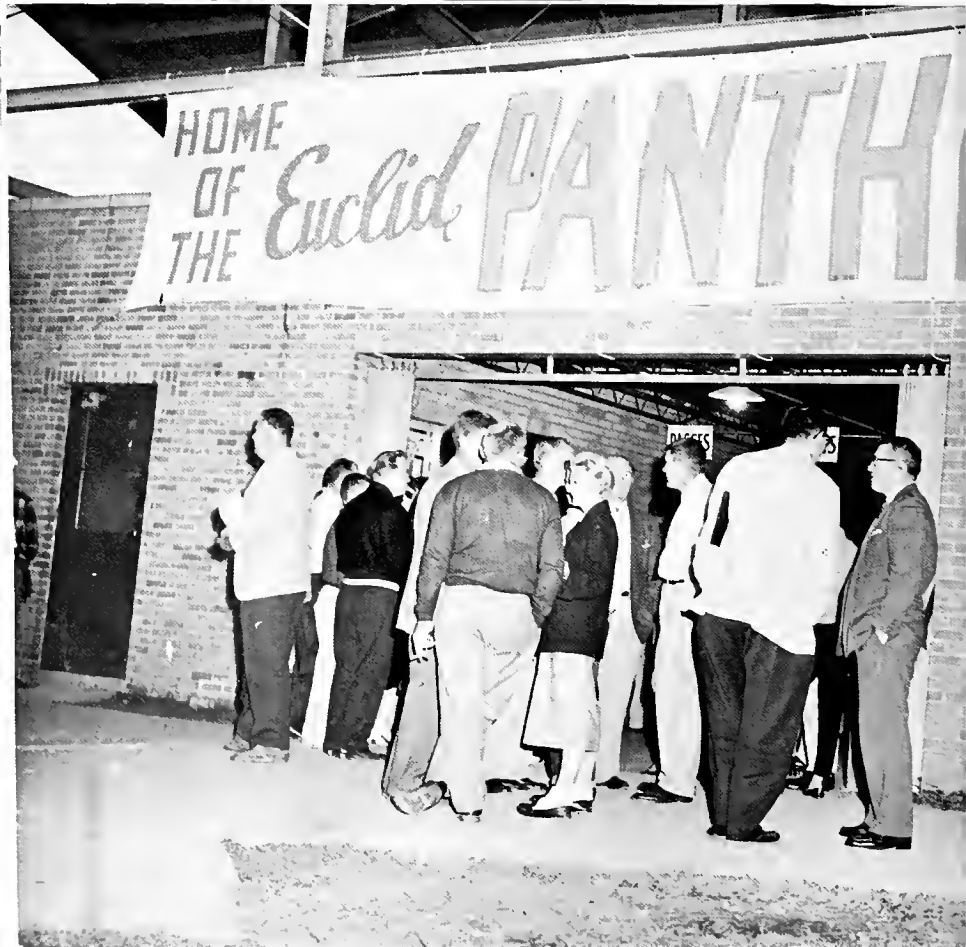

Social Life And Sports Go

Many hours of this work transformed Euclid's gym into a Homecoming throne room.

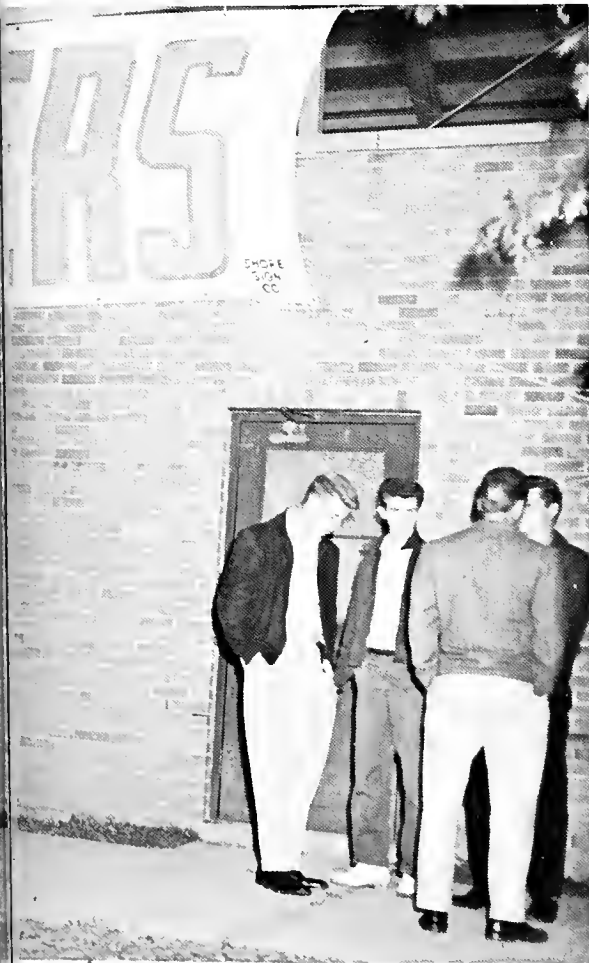

Spirit at Euclid High has its highs and lows, but cheering is always loud and ear-ringing when the teams fight to maintain Euclid's high standing. The school is turned into an entirely different place on Friday evenings when a sporting event is scheduled, for enthusiastic rooters come to not only assist the team, but to obtain sore throats, cracked voices, and a warm feeling of pride in knowing they have helped to win a game or soften the blow of a loss. A cheering group who lets the team know they want a win and gives them an extra spark of desire is necessary for any winning team. Euclid has this cheering section at its games, not only in voice, but in desire and encouragement. With a helping hand from the Spirits Club, Euclid is well represented at every sporting event, and with our new fight song to boost spirit along, Euclid High will always have a crowd cheering in the stands.

Hand-in-Hand At Euclid

Highlighting the school year is the Homecoming dance, involving many people to plan this exciting climax to a thrill-packed three days. For months ahead of time, preparations were under way to organize this event so no last minute flaws would occur. With two events behind them, anxious volunteers raided the gym, transforming it into a beautiful ballroom. Amid laughter and falling glitter, decorations were placed by admiring hands.

Greeting all people as they entered the stadium, the huge banner had special meaning for Euclid High alumni the night of their Homecoming. Striking an especially tender spot in hearts of 1957 graduates, the blue and gold runner welcomed all who passed under on their way to the game. A recent addition to the stadium, it can be read as one passes along Tracy Avenue, maintaining pride, for the name which it carries is one which will always be remembered.

STUDENT LIFE

From friendly get-togethers to the highlighting Homecoming celebration, students at Euclid have filled hours with relaxation and enjoyment. Although Euclid High's social life has been limited this year due to increased enrollment and lack of facilities, these barriers were overcome by working as a team. Being so infrequent, dances such as our successful sock-hop, Spring Sports and Homecoming were anticipated with more enthusiasm and accepted with deep appreciation. With the completion of the social room, dances and parties will again become a part of our regular routine, though memories of this year's social whirl will long be remembered by the graduating seniors. Social life is indeed a part of one's education and his future. Recreational facilities and activities, unlimited in this school, are essential chapters in the book of personal development.

Anticipation of Spirit

Publications "went to press" to help Panthers win.

Fun and work go hand in hand when Homecoming time rolls around each year. Perhaps the hardest factor in making a float sounds quite simple—deciding a title. After much deliberation and compromise one idea immerges and soon the framework is up resembling a float which has just been hit by a hurricane. Next, chicken wire is tacked onto the frame and the float begins to have character. Now it is "stuffing" time—all recruits push small pieces of crepe paper into the holes of the chicken wire—this is much fun, but oh those numb fingers. Finishing touches are then added and the float is ready for the parade and is regarded as a true work of art by the exhausted workers.

Girl athletes started mixer to "whip" team into shape to "Beat Shaw."

"Biggest and Best Ever" is the phrase which typifies the 1957 Homecoming. Many cold, hand-numbing, but pleasure-filled hours preceded the final, glorious bonfire, parade, game, and dance. Long before the candidates for queen and her court were announced, eight organizations had collected ideas for a float centered around the theme, Beat Shaw, laid their plans, bought materials, and begun work on their creations. Every float worker will remember the last minute scurry searching for more crepe paper, the late, late hours kept toward the evening, and their final feeling of pride as they surveyed the completed project.

Highlights Homecoming

Key Club turned ignition to "Blast Shaw."

Pep band serenaded Shaw dummy with "Death March."

Towering flames sent sparks of spirit into the night.

'Twas the SPIRIT! SPIRIT! SPIRIT! All students were surrounded with it. Homework was temporarily forgotten as finishing touches were placed on floats. Thursday night came and it was bonfire time—the best attended bonfire Euclid had ever witnessed. The pep band played with all their might and the crowd yelled cheers until all voices were deep-throated and husky. The climax reached a deafening roar as the Shaw player was burned in effigy. Candidates for queen and her court were introduced who would, in a brief, twenty-four hours, be riding in shiny convertibles in the gala parade. Of course the beautiful queen candidates were highlighted, their throne being a sleek, white Ford convertible.

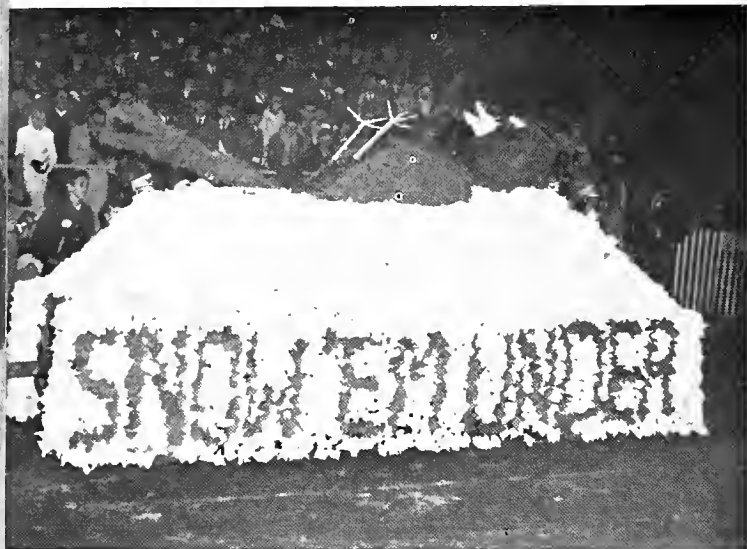

Six hundred anxious students watched Panther gridmen cool off as they give Shaw dummy a "hotseat."

Night Before Homecoming

Pat, Nancy and Lynda dreamed of being "Queen for an Evening."

Panther fans hoped Euclid would beat the Cardinals and "Snow Em Under" as shown by the Nobles Hi-Y.

After weeks of hustle and bustle, worries, joys, and excitement, the end could be delayed no longer. From the array of fabulous floats, Thespians' "Gnaw Shaw" was pronounced the first prize Homecoming float for 1957. "Snow-Em-Under" certainly typified the judges' thoughts. Homecoming was planned with '57 Alumni in mind, though, and many a longing gaze was seen; wistful sigh, heard; and bit of nostalgia, felt at the game and dance. Old friends met and a feeling of closeness prevailed throughout the dance as they remembered their court, their game, their floats, their bonfire. Honor and tribute were given to the court as they danced to the song played just for them—a song and dance which highlighted and terminated a beautiful, successful, 1957 Homecoming weekend.

Happy Homecoming

Thespians and Stage Crew efforts were rewarded when Arne presented winning trophy to Fred and Mr. Jenkins.

Braving the cold, Euclidites, both alumni and students, took part in the annual Homecoming festivities.

"Standing room only" was the status of the stands as faithful Euclid followers always filled the stadium.

Concession workers cry, "Where's the coffee?" for numb-fingered fans.

Even though winter hit with all its fury during the 1957 season, loyal Euclid fans could always be counted upon to brave the weather and urge on our football team. Some students resorted to wearing two pairs of gloves and three sweaters, but many more could be found swarming around the concession stand for a welcomed cup of hot coffee. But no matter how cold it became, many cheerful followers were always on hand, armed with cough drops and shakers to add to Euclid Hi's spirit.

Friday Adds Up To

Euclid rooters came well prepared with blankets to face wintry winds.

Shivering in cold winds and blowing snow, spirit minded students ventured to the games on busses or any other type of transportation which could be found. Finding most of the fun going on busses to the games, for which the students signed up during the week, girls and boys alike got a head start on their sore throats by cheering in the busses. Others who weren't able to take busses, arrived in cars with blue and gold shakers, blankets, and hand warmers. These articles were put to use as soon as everyone was settled and ready to watch another exciting game. With the cold night came a desire for coffee or something warm; these wants were satisfied by a trip to the concessions stand where anything was sold from apples to hot dogs to cokes or candy. All these memories brought heartaches to the senior when they realized that this was the last year of football games, the last time they could go together to the games with a group of friends they had known for three years; never before had the Alma Mater meant so much to these students.

Wind blown singers participate with the band in the musical half-time show.

Football, Fun And Frolic

Joyful students shared in victory as they rode the busses to all away gridiron battles.

Echoes of Cheers Help Boost Euclid's Spirit

"Lynch Lakewood" was the vengeful cry of Panthers.

Bravely facing their classmates, "the boys" led cheers, filling the students with laughter.

Girls traded skirts for football togs when they clashed in the Powderpuff Bowl.

Building spirit in any possible way, the Spirits Club planned entertaining after-school pep assemblies and one during school time. Every scheme from using boy cheerleaders to a girls' football game was employed. The pep band was always present with its rousing marches and fight songs. With posters advertising these assemblies a week in advance, a good turn-out was usually present. The gym was really packed, however, when game time actually rolled around. Cokes, apples, and potato chips were supplied by the concession stands. The basketball season was a good one and will long be remembered for its close scores and high competition.

Cheerleaders serve to call the crowd to after-school pep assemblies "like barkers" at a circus.

With the game hinging on a foul shot, basketball fans waited expectantly as the ball "swished" through the basket.

Days Are Filled With Proud And Happy Events

The clean-up gang takes a break from the mop to listen to bop.

Cleaning up after a dance proved to be fun as these students discovered when cleaning after the Homecoming Dance. Glitter had been scattered over the floor, and other remnants of the gala occasion remained to be swept up, but anything can be made into fun. Time out was taken to sing a few songs accompanied by John Becker on the piano. Within a few hours, the gym was looking like a gym again with its floor shining and walls cleared, and baskets untrimmed. Memories remained, however, even though the wonderland had disappeared.

Entertaining the community each year at Christmas time, the combined Euclid High choirs performed to the best of their ability this year. The Choral Masters, the newest addition to the Choral Department, sang a delightful number at their Christmas Concert. The Twelve Days of Christmas, an ancient folklore song which is always enjoyed, was offered to the audience. With twelve specially selected persons to exemplify the symbols of each day, a large laugh was in store for all who came.

Six swans and some rings provided light Christmas joy at the annual Choir Christmas Assembly.

Chess, conversation and chomping brought smiles at the Student Council Christmas party.

Since the Student Council was so large this year, and the members had little chance to get to know one another, a party was planned specifically for this purpose. Reserving the gym, pool, and setting up various parlor games in the old recreation room, there was never a dull moment and every moment was well planned. Anxiously awaiting the Hough Bakery catering service which arrived with hamburgers, buns, potato chips, and cokes, the representatives ate until they could eat no more. After eating, most of the participants played basketball, but some, who had eaten more than the others, were content to play a quiet game of chess or checkers.

Bringing attention to several individually organized bands at Euclid High, the "Bands of Tomorrow" contest featured three bands from Euclid out of the six finalists from schools in greater Cleveland. When the Debonaires took a first place in the large band division, they brought pride to their school and community. Led by Lee Hammell and his trumpet, the boys performed well and certainly deserved this high honor.

Also bringing pride to the school in another way were those students who were initiated into National Honor Society. A total of seventy-five boys and girls were inducted in the impressive ceremony held January 17. Letters had been sent out to the parents asking them to attend this assembly and loving congratulations were exchanged during the tea which followed in the cafeteria; proud parents and teachers alike witnessed misty eyes and joyous hearts after this great honor had been bestowed upon their students.

The Debonaires sounded sweet, looked sharp as they became the Bands of Tomorrow winners.

Smiles, tears of joy, and friendly handclaps are always present at Euclid's most impressive ceremony.

SPORTS

Life in a country as luxurious as ours during this modern "push-button" age demands more than ever before the promotion of physical activity. Organized sports meet this situation ideally and go still further by satisfying each athlete's desire to compete. Lessons in sports go even further than can be imagined by surpassing the actual physical element and expanding to include intangible power, offering sportsmanship, perseverance, respect for others, self-reliance and teamwork. It does not take long before the athlete realizes that there is more to playing than just winning, and that the satisfaction is found in the competition itself. No one person can be the whole team, he discovers, while learning the importance of being a strong link in the chain as a unit. Discouragement is overcome as he acquires the ability to fight hard to the very end of every contest, and to smile cheerfully as defeat is his. And when he wins, he knows that here is success not only for himself, but for his team and his school.

Sports are invaluable and this is an evident fact to any true athlete who realizes how extensively this organized, physical activity contributes to his growth as an active individual.

Although they worked hard and long on the practice field, the Panther eleven and Coach Mohr just couldn't find the combination for a winning season. Whether won or lost, though, all 1957 football games were exciting; there was always cheering; there was always crisp air and high spirits; the players always strived to win.

Even using field goals and long, spiralling passes proved futile. The boys strived but the plays wouldn't click and work as the coaches had designed them. Even though our gridders won only two games, the students and school boosters were always out in the stands cheering until the last whistle. Spirit grew and grew, a win was always anticipated—a loss was always grieved.

With Spirit and Stamina . . . An Outstanding

The first meet of the season, the Medical Fund Preview, seemed a preview of the season to come for the Euclid Cross Country Team. No team worked harder than Coach Thompson's Harriers. A typical workout was jogging around the two-mile course at half speed, half hour of calisthenics, running five half-miles against the stop-watch and then sprinting 200 yards to finish the practice. All boys who want to work and have fun at the same time should try out for this team. Everyone on the team runs in a cross country meet with an equal chance to win. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors run together since there is no J. V. team, creating a more competitive spirit. Cross Country is one of the most tiring sports in the school, requiring a great amount of stamina. Individuals were over-shadowed by the tremendous team effort to which every boy contributed, but some of the regular leaders were Captain Bill Lewin, Tom Heinz, Chuck Hocevar, Tony Lucci, Bill Nebe, and Gary Rafferty. Beaten only once in their dual meets, sweeping the Lake Erie League in both "A" and "B" divisions, taking second place in the district, and finishing eighth in the state, the Cross Country Panthers may be proud of their creditable record.

Fighting Hoopsters

"Up, up, up, and away is a familiar cry heard when a jump shot such as this is performed. With stands packed and the air reverberating from cheers, the spectators give their team the encouragement to do even better. Ears will undoubtedly be ringing when the crowd leaves the school and proceeds to the drive-in for something to eat, or to some house party. As tournaments draw closer and closer, the spirit reaches a peak and excitement fills the air with electricity. Even with the large gym at Euclid, there are seldom enough seats for everyone during the tournaments. Concessions workers have their hands and cash boxes full as people come from all over greater Cleveland to back their team. Strangers to Euclid gasp at the facilities we have here: the library, cafeteria, pool, and the gym itself. Tournament time is a busy time for all involved, but a time of year never forgotten, for its excitement and the joy of seeing the top teams compete is a spectacular thing.

In Sportsmanship and Wrestling . . . Ohio's Champs

"Wrestling is an ancient and fascinating sport. No other true sport has the same objective; that of subduing an opponent with nothing more than the native physical endowments of skill, speed, and strength." These words, from this year's wrestling handbook, typify what Coach Eckert's matmen strived to do and did with superlative results. Capturing the Lake Erie League championship with unequalled opposition, undefeated and often unscored against, the wrestlers sailed through on the regional tournaments. Drawing large crowds at all their meets, building spirit for the basketball tournaments, and giving the school a reason to feel true pride. With eight boys going to State the wrestling team again brought glory to Euclid. Hopes for another outstanding team next year are high as juniors Don Schonauer, Ron Watson and Jerry Eisman placed first in the District with Schonauer and Watson coming in third and fourth in the State respectively.

Every day by 3:30 the swimmers are in the pool practicing, J. V. as well as Varsity. Perhaps the team wasn't the best in the L.E.L., but it was one of the hardest working. Never giving up, the relay teams and individual medleys worked for perfection in timing and stroke-work. With two experienced divers, the team gained quite a number of points in each meet, and the 1957 team gave encouragement and guidance to newcomers. Working under the leadership of Coach Donaldson, tough workouts were administered, and the swimmers soon learned this paid off in better placings in a meet.

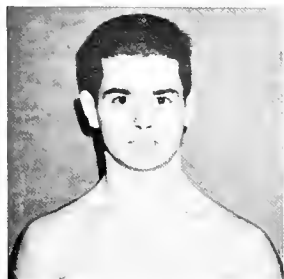

The timers prepare to stop the watches as another swimmer boils to the finish line.

Captain Fred Peterson held the record of having the most strikes, nine straight during one game. Euclid High is indeed proud of its newest team in the sporting field.

An honor for the outstanding participants in any sport is membership in the Letterman's Club. Members of this organization must be letterwinners, the letter having been won in any athletic endeavor. A symbol of their accomplishment is the white letter sweater with its big gold "E." Boys who wear this sweater carry pride in their school and their ability with them. These boys will be the future leaders in their community.

"IKE" DRIVER PRESENTATION

Paying homage to "Ike" Driver, one of the finest and most spirit-minded men in the city of Euclid, the letterman, in the fall sports assembly, presented him with a gold-lifetime pass to all sport events and a white letter sweater, the same type lettermen wear with pride. Surely this was a most fitting reward for the man who has devoted so much time and energy to sports at Euclid.

Working hard every day for the students' enjoyment, the Athletic Board has a never-ending job. This year the slogan, "Buy one for the Panthers," was seen on car bumpers all over town and the publicity paid off. Overflowing crowds were on hand for all football games. A great big thank you is extended to our Athletic Board. Without them Euclid High would not have an athletic program which provides sports opportunities for all boys.

HEAD CHEERLEADERS

Susan Galaba, Patricia Marolt

The Heart of Euclid's Spirit

Perhaps the hardest working and most energetic girls at Euclid High are the cheerleaders. Practicing all year, these girls are always eager and ready to lead their teams to victory. Possessing every known quality that contributes to make a good cheerleader, the six final girls vote among themselves to determine who the captain will be. This year an unusual incident occurred when two popular girls received equal votes, and since they had been cheerleaders together since their sophomore year, the team decided to have them both as co-captains. It proved to be a terrific combination. Practices started in the summer and became longer and more tiring, but all for a good reason. Their second place award in the Euclid Regional Tournament was indeed gratifying, however, and it provided a perfect ending for a perfect year.

Always cheerful, these Panthers flippers even laugh during practice.

Euclid's well-trained cheerers lead the locomotive yell.

Working just as diligently as the varsity cheerleaders, the J. V.'s were selected at the beginning of the school year. Cheering for all J. V. events, and practicing until cheers were well co-ordinated and organized, the girls had a good start toward being Varsity cheerleaders.

Lending a helping hand whenever necessary, these energetic sophomores proved to be a great help to the Varsity cheerleaders when Mom and Dads Night rolled around, and during Homecoming.

Qualities of Leaders . . . Charm and Co-ordination

Girls' Leaders Club, an enthusiastic and energetic group of specially picked girls is invaluable to the girls' gym department as assistants in every gym class, every period. Helping the gym teachers take attendance, directing and reffing all kinds of sports from volleyball to archery, and taking charge of the classes when a teacher is detained, these girls gain experience in the art of leadership, an essential quality in a well-rounded personality. All is not work, however, as these girls found time to plan interesting outdoor activities such as weekend campouts. Under the cheerful and cooperative guidance of Miss Simonic, the G.L.C. sponsor, the group experienced two such weekends, both of which were highly successful and humorous. Their annual banquet at the end of the year closed their social activities and provided time to review an enjoyable and rewarding year.

A ballet in basketball performed by the Girls' Leaders.

Always eager to show a beginner how to swim correctly, the swim cadets either tell him how or jump into the pool or show him how. Since these girls must pass a difficult test in order to become a cadet, they know all basic skills, strokes, and teaching techniques. Not only strokes are taught, however, for included in the girls' swim program are diving and synchronized skills, both of which require excellent co-operation between the teacher and student. Swimming classes, a voluntary section of the girl's gym department under the direction of Miss Urchek, would not be able to function properly without these girls who give up much of their time for the benefit of others. While performing their duties, they also found time to plan outings with the boy cadets. Swimming was temporarily forgotten when they discovered it had snowed for their picnic and hot dogs were eaten not drowned in mustard, but in snow.

The girls learn how—from "cap-adjusting" to "shoving-off"—under the careful guidance of Anita Johnson.

Providing enjoyment for all sports-minded girls, the Girls' Athletic Association strives to develop good sportsmanship, leadership, and social conduct. Managed by the Advisory Board, intramural activities and surprise get-togethers are among the plans constantly developed by these ambitious girls. In addition to team and individual sports, horseback-riding lessons were added to the agenda this year. Other regular G. A. A. activities include field hockey, volleyball, archery, softball, soccer, and basketball. Euclid has provided the equipment and teachers and the girls have supplied the will and interest which makes G. A. A. successful each year.

Later action proved that these girls are not as dainty as they appear!!

... Work, Practice, Co-operate

Under the supervision of Mr. Dale Harper, Euclid High's bands and orchestra stage entertaining concerts and assemblies for the community and students. Always striving for perfection from his musical groups, only the best music and musicians are allowed to participate in these activities. A tradition such as ending all programs with the Stars and Stripes Forever has started and will continue, featuring the piccolo, trumpet, and trombone sections. The audience is rather surprised that musical instruments are capable of such a volume!

Gaining the necessary experience from the music department, several bands have been organized by industrious students. These bands are for pleasure only and have no connection with the musical program at Euclid. They obtain jobs to play during the weekends, an enjoyable way to add to their income. A "Bands of Tomorrow" contest was organized this year for all Greater Cleveland bands of this kind. The Debonaires, which consisted of nine members, entered this contest in the "Large" band division and due to long practices and hard work, achieved the glory of first place in their division.

The Rhythm Kings take a last look at the Bands of Tomorrow Contest music.

FINE ARTS

Cultural talents are gifts from God, and the expression of these abilities is truly a fine art. Realizing this, and the fact that these higher aspects of life have much to donate to one's character, Euclid's administration has perfected an organized program for their instruction. Through membership in the Choir, Band, Orchestra and dramatic productions, students are taught how to properly develop their individual talents so that they may utilize them to their fullest extent. Naturally, each person's basic ability varies to a greater or lesser degree, but here at Euclid, each student has ample opportunity to advance indefinitely in his particular field.

But besides contributing education and personal satisfaction to the actual members of this department, it also has much to offer to each citizen of our community. Anyone who wishes can relax and enjoy the peace and contentment which are the fruits of these student's endeavors. For in such a way, each voice in the Choir, each player in the band or orchestra, each actor in a dramatic presentation is attempting to share with others the benefits of his work. And in so doing, each is unsuspectingly furthering his individual progress as a part of his reward for striving to advance the finer, cultural arts of life.

The adjective used to describe the Euclid High Concert Band could only be superb. Even though the Band ranks high in the State, it is always reaching towards a higher degree of perfection. All work and no play certainly does not apply to the band, for a band trip alone serves to lighten the tension that may arise before a contest. Even a night rehearsal turns out to be enjoyable after "Uncle Dale" finishes one of his on-the-spot jokes. Working individuals, the backbone of the band, are often the Top Sergeants and Board of Directors. This group composed of elected band members has the job of keeping the band running smoothly, and judging "punishment" when necessary. No one could forget how the quarters seemed to add up because of carelessness in forgetting a folder. But a band without music is impossible, and so Euclid's never is. Four librarians search the files thoroughly hunting for a lost clarinet part, and, not succeeding in finding it, finally ordering a new one. Worse than a band without music is a band without a director, but Mr. Harper and his three able assistants always come through. Between planning shows, and giving lessons, they always see that the band continues to play music of top quality. These and many more contributions are needed to produce this outstanding group at Euclid High.

The musical vibrations that echo the halls are not always from the Concert Band, but possibly from the Orchestra, Cadet or Pit Band. Every Friday the vibrating tones extend from the corridor to the auditorium when the Pit Band strikes up an enthusiastic march. On the other hand, the finer side of music is found in the Orchestra. These are the instrumental organizations that make Euclid's music department so outstanding.

Mr. Harper seems pleased while his tenth-graders finish the "Stars and Stripes."

Euclid's marching band opens with its traditional greeting.

Except for the faint humming of "Here Comes the Bride," the bus remained silent as Mr. Harper proudly led Nance Carney down the aisle. The "mock" wedding which took place on the bus to Willoughby certainly was a gala affair. This year's Marching Band witnessed many unusual experiences, including the last game of the season which practically "snowed" them off the field. But weather was only a trivial factor to the Marching Band, for in rain, snow, or sunshine, they were always on the job putting on new and original half-time shows each week. The spirit of the group was exemplified a few minutes before each game as the Band replied to the top sergeant's question, "What are we going to do?" with a loud and clear answer, "March them off the field."

"Uncle Dale" is so nervous he has to hold on.

Down in front!

The band took "boughs" all season and now they decorate them.

High Spirit . . . High Steppers

While the snow storm swirled, the majorettes twirled.

Flashing gay smiles and twirling, shining batons, Euclid's majorettes stepped proudly and grandly to the fine music supplied by our band. Often our high-steppers marched through long and hard hours of practice, many times opening the school in the morning and being the last to close the door at night. Taking an active part in the half-time program of each football game, the girls would be watched and pitied by many freezing fans, and with chattering teeth, the crowd would cheer their praise of the twirlers' endurance. Having the distinction of being the first members of this vocal group, the Euclid Choral Masters made their way into the hearts of people for miles around on wings of song. Besides rehearsing the second period each day, these vocalists discussed everything from Governor Faubus's wife to the raising of funds for a portable piano for Cosmo. But a new piano was added to Euclid this year and the Masters worked on. Recordings were taped at performances so that weak points could be observed and corrected. One thing was observed for sure; Bonnie Tolar certainly could play the chimes! Though fun was frequent, the Masters were all proudly and happily dedicated to the welfare of the entire group. Through the efforts of their Director, Mr. Taylor, alias Mr. "T," this organization became an excellent example of unity and service at Euclid.

Without a song? This year Euclid Choir combined all the advances made in music through the centuries and provided our school with many enjoyable hours of entertainment. The members of this organization had the honor of carrying on the choir name, the traditional vocal group at Euclid. They were also fortunate to be the first ones to ever find the lost chord—their lone tenor, Ron Ullem. But every voice played an important part in the success of the group, success in making music and its interpretation a more living part of E. H. S.

The nervous actors took a final glance at their lines, Student Director Bobbi Monroe chewed off her last fingernail, and the curtain went up on "Grammercy Ghost," this year's fall play. Even though backstage life was hectic, as Fred Fantini dashed all over town for flowers for Nancy Carney, leading lady, the only hint to the audience was a late curtain-raising. But the delay certainly proved worthwhile, for Director Mr. Robuck and his crew presented a play which was the most highly attended and profitable one in Euclid High's history.

ORGANIZATIONS

Catering to the special want of each individual student, Euclid High is well supplied with many and varied clubs. Striving to develop the social poise of the participants, the predominate aim of these organizations is to develop preparedness for future social life, and the character, and reliability of the participant. Two types of clubs are open to membership; the social clubs which provide students with the art of getting along and making friends, and clubs which perform various functions vital to the school. Showing the students the benefits of cooperation and parliamentary procedure, these clubs develop a sense of responsibility in their members. The school and community benefited from the valuable service offered them by organizations but the individual was truly rewarded by gaining experience helpful in later life.

Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service . . . National Honor Society

As January creeps up each year, it is not unusual for the neighborhood mailman to make his way to a door which is suddenly opened by an excited Senior High Student. Though the puzzled mailman walks away wondering, this action is very understandable, for each student, however doubtful he may be, anxiously anticipates receiving a letter of acceptance into the National Honor Society. Being a distinguished honor, it is received by only those select few who have truly served our school and have outstanding traits of leadership, scholarship, and character. For these few, the shrieks of surprise and the tears of joy will be long-treasured memories of their high school days.

“Point of order!” This would undoubtedly be the voice of the Parliamentarian, for to most other members of the Student Council, the meeting procedure was a maze, complicated and impossible to solve. Yes, Student Council had big problems within itself besides those presented by the entire student body. To meet and overcome these perplexing situations, it was customary to appoint committees to work out a solution. Typical of these was the garden committee, remember council members, for the removal of weeds? Through experience on committees and in general sessions with this, the government of E. H. S., many students were fortunate enough to add this knowledge of democratic living to their ever-growing storehouse of experiences which led them to maturity.

Capturing Memories of Laughter, Work, Business Staffs

Gathering every possible resource and putting it to use, the Euclidian Editorial Staff joined together to reach their common goal—the best yearbook Euclid High had ever published. During the summer months and continuing throughout the year, each staff member took great pride in taking part in the creation and completion of the 1958 Euclidian. Working as a group they became one big “family” as they found time for such social events as beach parties, picnics, float making, a progressive dinner, working in the closet, sledding, housecleaning, along with the final farewell dinner. These memories of good times will always be recalled along with the remembrance of their last minute rush at deadline time and the “name searching” for that one person they couldn’t identify. The top position, when recalling these Euclidian days, is held by the person who made work so much more enjoyable by keeping the will to strive for perfection live in their hearts and on their minds—Mr. Gene Pillot. The unforgettable experiences and problems faced by this publication team made the yearbook a part of some lives while others found it was their life.

The weeks of sleepless nights and endless days of counting and recounting money were not in vain as this year's Euclidian Business Staff reached a record goal of 1900 subscriptions. Each morning, noon, and night, this staff was on the job working to raise the money necessary to pay for the production of the 1958 Euclidian. This work wasn't confined to the staff alone, for the student body was given the chance to do its share too, by selling ads to the community and its merchants. Along with the raising of these funds they also found time to plan our school record and see to it that each student received his yearbook.

Lassoing information on everything from student polls to alumni news, this year's staff could corral any interesting story. The range of appeal grew this year as color became more prominent.

“Watch the margins!” This war cry of the '57-'58 staff can be heard as each issue comes thundering off the press. But the publication would be impossible if it weren't for the efforts of this group, diligently selling advertisements and subscriptions to raise funds. Their really big job, though, was to see that each subscriber received his Survey every two weeks.

These members carefully plan affairs for this national organization and find for themselves enjoyment and many unforgettable experiences. Such opportunities as substituting in grade schools provides occasions to become better acquainted with the teaching profession. Our chapter, being one of the largest in Greater Cleveland, gives its members a "taste" of teaching in its truest form and can be credited with helping to produce many fine teachers.

The International Key Club is an organization of young men sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs all over the world. They are dedicated to the service of God, country, school, and community. The Euclid Club has done much for this school, not only in service, but by adding to the spirit as well. They have sold over 1200 Panther buttons, presented their annual Key Club assembly, and again built another outstanding Homecoming float. Always working for the betterment of the school and community, these thirty-eight boys have car washes and other money-raising projects to provide things like Christmas baskets to needy families. The State convention of Ohio Key Club was held at Euclid Senior High this year. This gathering was representative of the many honors which this organization has brought to our school.

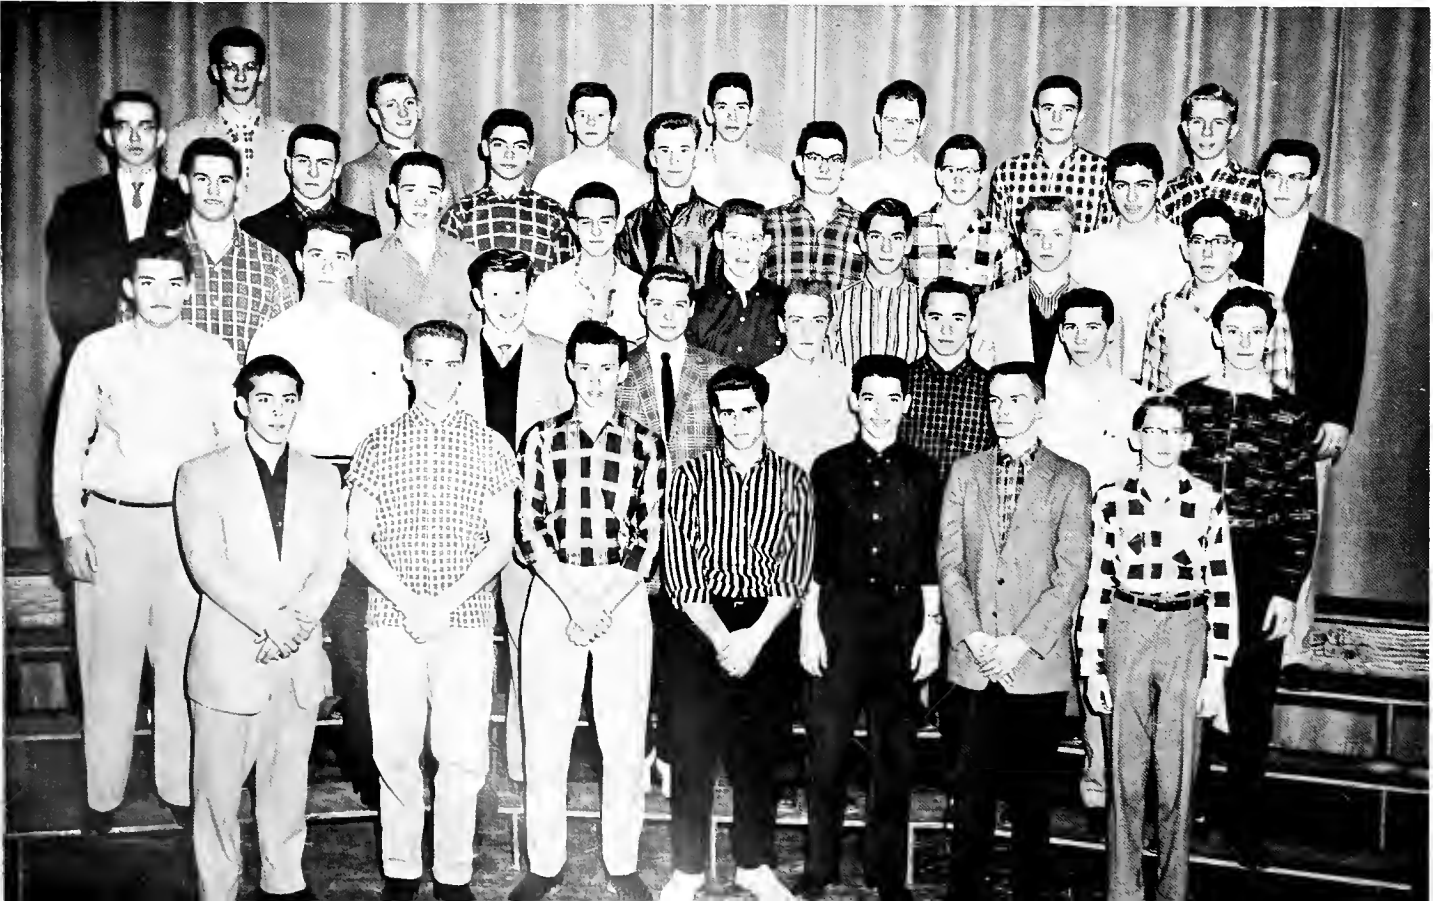

President Harold Berlo calls on Butch Nelson, Treasurer, to air his views.

Asia IS good for something besides flu! The World Affairs Club came to that conclusion after thorough discussion on this year's topic, "The Far East." Of extreme value to this organization was Mrs. Stewart's first-hand information and personal touch of color discovered only through actual experience. From World Affairs, these students attain beneficial knowledge which will aid them greatly in adult life.

One of the newest clubs at Euclid is the Foremen's Club, which has been organized for three years. Small, but growing rapidly, the students are interested in industrial arts and mechanical drawing. The club's purpose is to promote leadership in industrial arts classes and prepare members for future years as possible foremen in factories. Students in this Club teach and assist pupils in mechanical drawing classes. Field trips and well-planned assemblies, featuring interesting speakers are part of the Foremen's Clubs' activities.

Promoting Pride in Our School . . . The Spirits Club

Spooks are swarming at E. H. S. It's meeting time again for the silent spirit boo-sters of Euclid. The Spirits Club has a big job at Euclid. These spooks invade the graveyard of dead spirit and rouse it so that enthusiasm is strong in our school. Many problems were solved with sometimes humorous results when members tried to meet this challenge and still keep their identities secret. Funnier still were the moans and sighs of their enthusiastic artist, Bobbie Monroe, who almost had many a nervous breakdown trying to think of ways to conceal her well-known method of drawing the old stand-by, bologna letters! Who will ever forget the extremes gone to so that no one would have a GHOST of an idea of the identity of the Spirits Club, the club of the unknown.

President Carl Palmer leads discussion about "Panther of the Week."

Fred Fantini, President, seems to have missed a good laugh.

Members of any Thespian group indeed are talented and the active Thespians here at Euclid have displayed this quality again and again. These students have portrayed many characters, anything from a ghost to a young, sharp-tongued tom-girl. Aside from all the time spent on stage, this year's Thespians found they were also quite good when it came to float-making by taking first place in our annual Homecoming Parade. To be a Thespian is the goal of many Euclid students and those who have attained this honor have fond memories of their annual banquet when they received a lovely silver, jewelled pin as a sign of their achievement.

Euclid's Honorary Athletes and Orators

Brawn on the field plus brain in the classroom equals membership in the National Athletic Scholarship Society. These rigid qualifications, met only by four boys this year, give incentive to underclassmen not only to improve athletic skills, but also to advance scholastically. Rated on sportsmanship, ability, and conduct around school, the ones chosen are then inducted at an impressive ceremony at the end of the school year.

Whether a debater's opening is humorous or serious, his speech unfailably brings honor and praise to Euclid High. The members of National Forensic League are fortunate to have exceptional speaking abilities which are encouraged and cultivated by this organization. These students, anxious to take advantage of the experiences offered them, participate in enjoyable and educational bus trips as the troop seeks another first place.

Artists of the Water . . . Wai Napolo

Another game of Pom-Pom-Pull-Away is enjoyed by all Swim club members.

A familiar gurgling sound is usually heard from the girls of Wai Napolo as they go down, defeated by the boys in a rough game of pom-pom pull away. Between this and eating hot dogs in the snow at their picnic this year, the members still found time to enter a float in the Homecoming parade, improve their swimming skills, and expand their leadership ability. Splashing their way to the annual swim show, Euclid's outstanding swimmers used their talents to create and supply the community with original interpretations, delightfully entertaining all fans from grade school to retirement age.

“ADing” much to the success of Euclid’s athletic program, the members of the Ad Club were always ready to sell tickets, collect them and even stamp hands at the basketball games. The familiar explanation, “Oh, but sir, it did work. You see, the hand stamp is only visible under the ultra-violet light,” was heard many times at our basketball games. Doing the behind-the-scenes jobs that no one else handles so well, each student in this organization played a part in the raising of funds that made it possible for the citizens of our city to have a team they could back. This group was undoubtedly a great AD-vantage to it s school and it s community.

The show must go on!! And it always does here at Euclid, largely because of the lone, tedious hours of work put in by the members of the stage crew. Constructing scenery, operating lights and helping with costumes and make-up are only a few ways by which these students gained experience in the technical side of productions. Their job also included seeing that everything ran smoothly behind the scenes of our plays, and if the doorbell rang instead of the telephone—well, that’s our stage crew.

Poems, short stories, essays. All these contributions plus artistic drawings are found every year in a school publication called the Eucuyo—Eu symbolizing our city of Euclid; cuy, our county, Cuyahoga; and o, our State, Ohio. Contents of this magazine are written solely by enterprising students who compete in a contest which offers prizes for the best journalistic style in each category. All entries, however, are read and screened by Eucuyo editors. After this is completed, the staff puts the Eucuyo "to press," uses various types of print to add variety, decides on a cover color and design, and offers to the student body a publication compiled entirely by their friends for the nominal fee of thirty-five cents, just enough to defray the printing cost.

Whether it was a cut finger or a test-prompted headache, the Future Nurses of Euclid Hi were always standing by, anxious to assist our nurse in administering first aid. At regular meetings the nursing profession is discussed thoroughly and a tour of Euclid Glenville let the girls get an idea of what lies ahead. Many years of training lies ahead of the girls who continue training in this field but the experience gained at Euclid will help immensely.

Even though the push-button age seems to be rapidly on its way, it still hasn't replaced our P. A. Technicians. For every speaker who announces, there are many unseen hands making it possible for the message to be relayed to the student body. These P. A. Technicians also shoulder the responsibility of providing "mikes" for every school organization that requests one. Going along with the belief that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," this club provides many humorous situations for its members to puzzle over. But until the push-button age is actually here, E. H. S. will gladly rely on these dedicated, experienced workers.

There's never a dull moment at E. H. S. and all that is going on is brought to the attention of each student during the morning announcements. The cheery "good morning" and the thought for the day helped start each day more pleasantly. Meetings would have been missed, current topics of discussion would have been avoided, and homerooms would have been quite boring if not for the efforts of the P. A. Announcers. Frequently muffled giggles and whispered conversations could be picked up in the individual rooms which proved that all was not work in the P. A. studio. Enjoyment had its place and well-deservingly so, for the job done by this organization is one for which each Euclid student and faculty member is grateful.

A flash from somewhere in the audience and our Camera Club had taken another picture of life here at Euclid. Covering everything from athletic events to Survey articles, this organization played an active part in various functions at E. H. S. Since Mr. McGinley, the sponsor, taught the members how to develop and print pictures as well as how to take them, the club proved educational and enjoyable.

Supplying the school with noon-time relaxation in the form of twenty minutes of movie a day, the Movie Club performs a behind-the-scenes, little-recognized service for film fans at Euclid. Anything from science fiction to cowboys and Indians is shown at the nominal fee of three cents per day. The popularity of these pictures was widespread among the students and it was more than once that a movie-goer stumbled into his after-lunch class still wrapped up in the latest events of the episode. Visual education was also handled by these students. A Movie Club member and his equipment was often greeted with open arms by a class who had sadly anticipated a test. Indeed, the Movie Club served our school and served it well.

Democracy in Life . . .

Living together in harmony and understanding formulates a basic quality necessary to our development. Euclid's City Hall represents democracy in action and symbolizes the standards and beliefs of Americanism which has been included in the individual's education. Parliamentary procedure is constantly present whether it is a school organization or an activity sponsored by the city. Individualism becomes secondary as we work with companions uniting our talents and striving to reach a common goal. Democracy—a word which stands for America, its people and their concepts.

A light moment in the Council meeting provides a break in the serious business.

As individual classes, students worked through the separate cabinets, but when a problem arose concerning the school, the Student Council was the logical body to solve it. In the governing body of our school, all three classes met and combined efforts and ideas to find a solution to the pressing problems which they faced. With numerous committees composed of persons of each class, many decisions were reached and suggestions were taken into consideration. Facing many problems itself, because of its size and inadequate meeting place, the Council did its best to maintain a high ranking in the eyes of the student body.

Combined Efforts Of All Classes

Chris seems to disapprove as Wilson and Goble look over Junior cabinet notes.

The yellow line that runs along the center of our nations highways is a practical representative of the middle-man, he who stands alone between two positive, advancing forces. Such is the Junior Class, they who occupied this strategic position at Euclid this year. Watching the newly-enrolled Sophomores as they eagerly plunged headlong into high school life, the Juniors rejoiced at the realization that they had stepped past this phase of development. But as they turned to the other side of the road they observed the Seniors, moving at a slower pace, for now they were writing and living the last chapter in their book of school memories. As they looked on with admiration and respect, the Juniors knew that they were still one step behind this superior position at Euclid. But as middlemen their job was still important, as they proved to themselves and others by sponsoring a successful Junior Prom and aiding in their school's progress.

The first few days for Senior A's—and they let the world know it!

Facing the final year with expectation and sadness, the seniors realized that organization and a strong group of leaders can make or break the chances of a class's success. With the ever willing help of counselors and deans, each student received counseling and advice when it was needed. Living each day with the knowledge that there would never be another year like this; that they would soon leave this atmosphere forever; that soon they would begin a new life in either work or more advanced schooling, was at times a dark cloud over a usually clear sky. Co-operative work between fellow students made chores seem lighter and more enjoyable. The final step of learning to get along with others had been faced and conquered, the year had ended and an entire new life was unfolding before the graduating Seniors.

Make A Successful Year

"Hail to Thee, Oh Euclid High School" was sung for the first time by the newly-arrived Sophomores.

For the first time at Euclid, the entire Sophomore Class was assembled together during the first week of school. Unknown to one another, the stranger sitting next to them during that first week of adjustment has probably become their best friend; or Nance Carney, who announced this first assembly has become a familiar face in the corridor. Filled with an air of expectation they were about to discover and learn what their next three years at Euclid were to be like. During this past year, they have proven themselves to be as much a part of Euclid as the graduating Seniors.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Preparation to assume the high position of Seniors is a tedious process, for numerous and varied are the experiences encountered along the way. Euclid's Underclassmen found this to be true as they painstakingly advanced closer and closer to the day when they would be the leaders of our school.

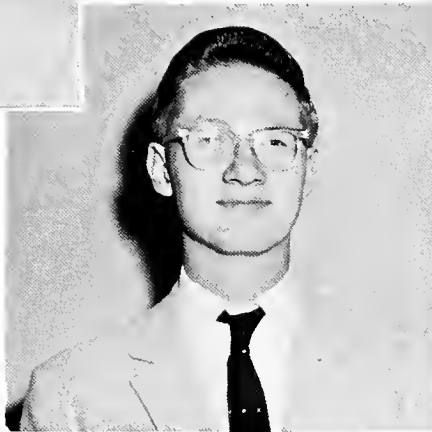

Sophomores and Juniors both discovered they were well on their way to a successful year when they could cheerfully accept the inevitable epidemic of "Senioritis." Each Sophomore's feeling of hopeless inferiority, each Junior's sigh of subjection at assembly dismissal; all fitted into an organized program of underclass progress. As graduation drew near and the Seniors passed on their final words of advice, the Underclassmen felt their first sense of insecurity change into one of responsibility; responsibility to carry on the development of Euclid High.

With another year facing them, the juniors realized they must again select their cabinet members and officers. Since much more responsibility was placed upon the shoulders of the cabinet members those chosen were usually leaders in their class. Receiving guidance and assistance from the counselors, Mrs. Stewart and Mr. Trogia, the class worked together as a unit and overcame the difficulties which could have arisen with such a large group of students.

Class rings are a high-priced privilege, aren't they John?

Memories . . . those intangible treasures which are collected by all underclassmen and gathered into a reservoir of thoughts reminding them of the privileges which they are soon to have . . . just seeing a Senior B at the beginning of the year was a memory, for this is the next-to-last-step on the ladder of secondary education . . . underclassmen soon picked up the habit of wearing knee socks, formerly reserved for the Seniors only . . . the first newly organized Student Council meeting . . . Survey and Euclidian subscription drives . . . the election of class officers and cabinet . . . crowded halls . . . split assemblies . . . new teachers and friends . . . the first all-school pep assembly during school time . . . the Homecoming weekend and all its glory . . . the last football game . . . exams . . . the Y-Christmas formal . . . National Honor inductions . . . term papers . . . Senior "As" cheering in the cafeteria . . . Senior "As" leaving the auditorium first . . . opening of the new city library . . . a State championship wrestling team . . . basketball tournaments . . . the beginning rush of the spring season and its activities.

SENIORS

As graduating Seniors, Euclid's young adults are entering an entirely new phase of life. For the past twelve years, they have been exposed to careful training which, if thoughtfully applied, can provide a sound, promising future. But now, they must trust their school days to memories, and walk into the competitive world with an attitude of both caution and confidence. All previous experience will prove to be invaluable, and they will look back with gratitude to those who contributed to their primary development. Their parents, for personal guidance; their religious leaders, for the peace and assurance of intangible powers; their teachers, for organized education; their civic leaders, for a democratic community dedicated to its citizens; their friends, for that special sense of security and trust; all these will be remembered with sincere appreciation.

Growth has begun, development has taken place, and progress has been made; the knowledge of this never-ceasing process stands beside Euclid High's graduating Senior, to follow him every step of life's way.

SENIORS

Our final year of high school has come and gone, and as Seniors the year has been rich, although many tribulations had to be met and overcome. The growth of our school was a major problem since cramped quarters caused a change in our regular routine. Complaints were heard about crowded conditions, but after a period of adjustment, all accepted the new schedule and made the very best of what was offered.

One moment all Seniors were sad, very sad to be leaving. Never before had our Alma Mater had so much meaning. Who will forget the heartbreaking Homecoming loss, the tears of joy and pride at the memorable assembly for "Ike" Driver, the feeling of superiority as the Seniors cheered—"more days for the Senior A's," while all the time a growing undercurrent of nostalgia washed against the heart of every graduating student. Yet all was not sadness. Much happiness was felt by all when the J.V. football team was undefeated and unscored against in the L.E.L.; when the wrestling and cross country squads took state honors; when the Spring Sports attendants were announced; and when the new social room was finally finished. Memories of people and events at Euclid Senior High will forever filter through the mind of every graduate, but the class of 1958 will have its special, its very own memories.

BOYS' COUNSELOR

Mr. Fred Johns

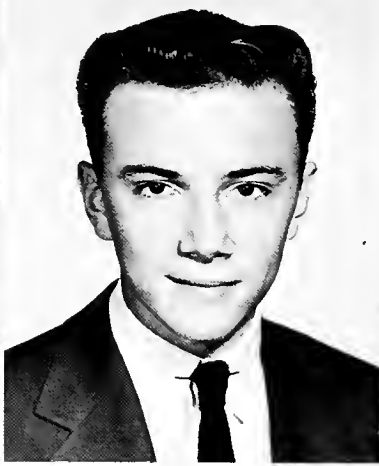

Planning the final activities for the seniors, the banquet and Prom, the officers and cabinet worked together to make this final year the most eventful one yet. Balancing the budget, deciding on a present from the class, taking orders for announcements, and measuring for caps and gowns were only a few of the duties performed by the cabinet under the always helpful guidance of Miss Gillman and Mr. Johns. Organizing such a large class was indeed a task, but one which was accomplished with skill and success.

Many hours of untiring effort and true co-operation have resulted in the creation of the 1958 EUCLIDIAN. Planning a yearbook as large and outstanding as Euclid's is a job that can not be accomplished alone. This year my staff faced each new situation and problem together but they were aided by many individuals who can not be left unmentioned.

Even though our staff was willing to supply the effort, we would not have succeeded without the co-operation and proper facilities provided by our superintendent of schools, Dr. Wellington G. Fordyce who was always ready to help in any way possible. Mr. Clifford Owens, Principal, was also anxious to assist us whenever a problem arose or advice was needed. Picture scheduling and re-takes are always a problem but Mr. Bruce Graham, Assistant Principal, helped us face this encounter, while our Deans, Mrs. Harriet Sheats and Mr. Jerry Bergem excused us from classes when time became short and that deadline had to be met. Although our yearbook has pictures taken by a student photographer, fine reproduction and quality of our pictures are accredited to Raimor Studios. Mr. M. Levine, Mr. Wm. Rainin, and Mr. J. Gongos were always ready to re-print just one more picture along with any other service they could perform for us. Many times we could not go to the Studio for film but Mr. Donald McGinley and his Camera Club always saw that we had what we needed in the way of photographic equipment. Art work, although it is limited, was given to Mr. Fred Vollman for his advice. Also supplying advice and helpful hints were Mr. George Scott from the Wm. J. Keller, Inc. and Mr. David Mack from the Mueller Art Cover Company.

Don Clink, Business Manager, and his staff under the guidance of Mr. Clayton George, Business Sponsor, did an exceptional job in supplying the needed finances for our yearbook. Their fine campaign brought a record sale in subscriptions of 90% of our student body subscribing.

With all these people working together, our job was lessened but the person who made our work more enjoyable and always provided the guidance that we needed so many times is Mr. Gene M. Pillot. He filled our staff with pride in our yearbook and made perfection our goal. To our staff, the yearbook without Mr. Pillot would not remain in our minds or close to our hearts.

To all these people I offer a big "thank you" and hope that this year's book can repay you by bringing back memories of a wonderful year.

Sincerely yours,
Diane Koss

Great to be the Leader

Yes, it's great to be the leader in a growing industry. But leadership imposes a responsibility too. A responsibility to deserve leadership by continuous progress in product development, production facilities, personal relations.

Like any leading team, the people at Lincoln don't rest on their laurels. They keep their eye on the future. The past has been good, but the future looks better. The people now working at Lincoln-and those who will join us-will share in this future growth.

EUCLIDIAN

SUPPLEMENT

EUCLID SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Euclid, Ohio

Long live the Queen.

With an "Around the World" theme, the 1958 Big Show provided two enjoyable evenings for both the audience and the performers. Many months before the actual curtain time, more than 100 students, under the supervision and direction of Mr. Taylor and Mr. Harper, had been learning how to apply make-up, handle back stage scenery and props, gain the attention of the community with publicity, and, most important, how to maintain a friendly, co-operative air within the entire staff. A feeling of success and satisfaction was evident in every person who had worked in this production and had helped make the evening an entertaining one.

Hang on tight Bill!

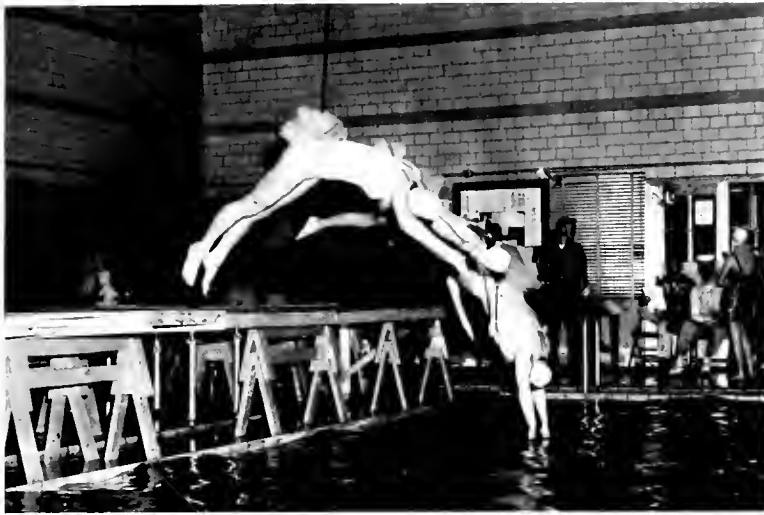

Hey you in the pit.

Vot you play piano mit, knees or hand?

LEISURE TIME

You mean you forgot the glue?

Early in the spring, students of Euclid High were entertained with an unusual, fantastic show. This was none other than the annual presentation of Wai Napolo's Swim Show, entitled "Fantasy." Starting after Christmas vacation, members rolled out of bed half an hour earlier to be in school at 7:30 enjoying a morning dip. These early morning rehearsals continued along with night practices until 11:30 p.m., with the constant aim of perfection in the minds of each swim club member. This year's show presented the audience with many clever and different routines, costumes, and props. The numbers were mostly of a serious nature, but often due to a slight error, or loss of a suit strap, they bore an air of disaster and humor. Perhaps the most enjoyable portion of the show was the concluding number of Ann Johnson's interpretation of a Water Nymph. Her gracefulness and beauty was certainly admired and envied by everyone, including the cast. But to the cast, the most memorable part of the show came when Miss Urhek and Mr. Donaldson were escorted into the pool for an evening swim. Their efforts did not go unnoticed though, as they both were rewarded with a wonderful show and the club's appreciation for all their work and spirit.

One of the first of the events was the Friendship Formal, held in the girls gym and having the theme of "Mardi Gras." With festive balloons, confetti, and paper streamers, couples danced the evening away and wished the night would never end. Later in the year couples at the Spring Sports Dance, with its theme of "Spring Swing," witnessed the crowning of the King and Queen of Spring Sports, and the announcement of the Queen's court and the King's princes.

Highlighting the Juniors' school year was their Prom entitled "Moonlight On the Mediterranean."

DRIFTING

Couples who seem happy to be able to relax for a few moments.

Dance, dance, only with me.

To the girls May 17 meant new formals, anticipation, and excitement. To the boys it meant obtaining money, washing the car, and behaving like a gentleman for twenty four hours. Although the actual Prom did not begin until 9:00, Coketail Parties were well underway by 7:00. The night passed quickly in the attempt to get in the way of the movie camera, gather enough souvenirs, and drink one's share of the punch. Much to the surprise of everyone the night was filled with glistening stars, a heavenly evening for a Senior Prom. When one wasn't busy primping, having their picture taken, or awing over someone else's dress, they danced to the music of Billy Lang's band. The dance, the couples, and the evening was filled with the magic that can only be found at a senior prom.

Did you say good morning or good night?

Poor feet—they danced the whole night through.

AND DREAMING

At 1:00 a motorcade of Euclid's most exclusive cars escorted by the Euclid Police proceeded to the City Hall. Here in the quietness of the parking lot, Mayor Sims presented Bob Stojetz with the key to the city. When the movies of Euclid's amateur actors were completed, the motorcade went back to Tapco for more dancing, eating, and entertainment. Although our all night prom took away many hours of sleep, Monday morning found the entire Class of '58 present for school.

The couples danced as Judy Jones entertained them with her lovely voice.

The sunrise provided a final touch to end this "Dream-come-true" for our seniors.

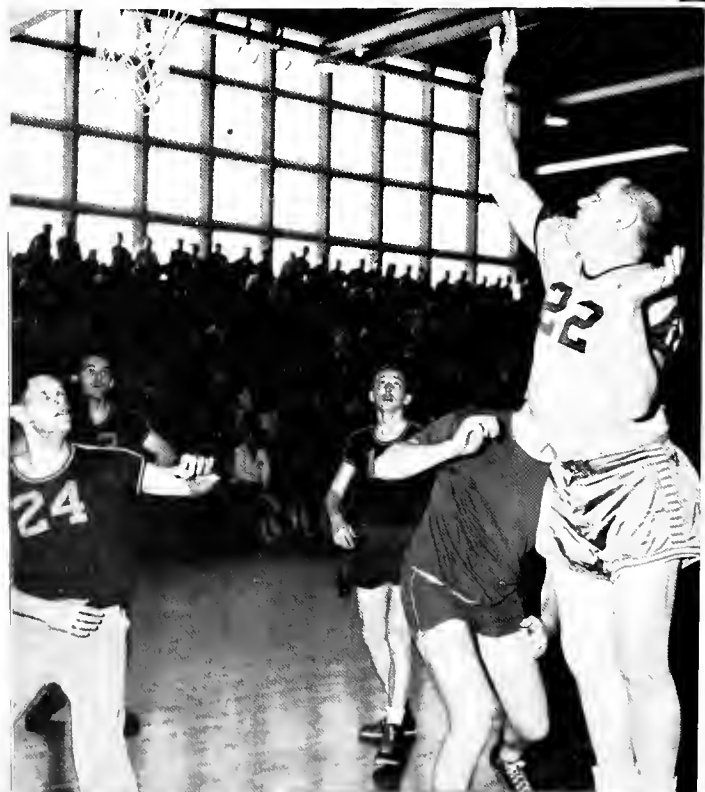

ALL-SCHOOL PARTY

Dancing to the Disc-Chords at the All School Party.

Weeks of preparation by Chairman Irene Wolff and her committees certainly proved worthwhile at our annual All-School Party. Movies, cards, games, basketball, shuffle board, and dancing were just a few of the many activities offered this year. This year Dave Roberts and the Disc-Chords supplied the music to set the mood for a wonderful evening. After all the activity hunger pains were eased at the bake sale in the athletic corridor. The evening provided fun and more memories of Euclid High.

FAT PANTHERS

FAT PANTHER CHEERLEADERS

As cheerleaders the faculty changed their tone.

Turning the tables, Euclid High Faculty members presented their annual Fat Panther game. Many laughs were had by both faculty and students as our Fat Panthers defeated their opponents in a suspenseful game.

The varied prints and designs to be found on our Fat Panther uniforms certainly did not out do Mrs. McMahon's "cool hat." This surely was a fine example that although our faculty rates high academically they are also grand sports.

'Maw, it's an infernal revenooer.'

Displaying more of the talent encouraged by Euclid High School's drama department, the 1958 Spring Play was "Papa Is All." Coached by Mr. Jenkins, the cast did a fine job of scenery, make-up, interpretation, and, most difficult of all, taking orders. Nerves are tight and tension is at a peak before and during the production. These students are gaining valuable experience whether they intend to follow an acting career or become a college graduate, for in all phases of life they will have to know how to get along with others, and no more trying situation can be found than back-stage five minutes before the curtain rises.

This year's Playnight was certainly the biggest and best Euclid has ever had. Student Director, Nance Carney, tried to meet every taste by presenting comedy, music, dancing and drama.

The musical, arranged by Mr. Jenkins, provided a beautiful dance routine by Ann Johnson. Also a part of this musical were a song or two with rather humorous settings.

"The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" filled the comedy requirement. A light and enjoyable plot was unfolded leaving the audience with not only a laugh but perhaps a tear.

The highlight of the evening was the original paly entitled, "How Black is Gray," written by Director J. Jenkins. This play was a dramatic fantasy dealing with the evils of society.

The entire evening went quite smoothly as far as the audience was concerned, but behind the curtain busy people were everywhere. These are all things which make up a play and must be overcome to have a good show. The wonderful performance on Playnight certainly proved Euclid has mastered every phase of drama.

PANTHER OF THE WEEK

Selected for outstanding service or achievement to Euclid Senior High, these students were chosen Panthers of the Week. Each week a meeting is held by the Spirit's Club to select a boy or girl deserving of this distinguished honor. Much thought is given to each recommendation presented to the committee and then the most outstanding candidate is awarded a panther at the assembly on Friday. This year, because of the split assemblies, a new award was originated called Cub of the Month. This honor is given once a month to a sophomore who has excelled in his field of endeavor at their assembly. The panther has certainly become the symbol of honor and achievement at Euclid Senior High School.

One of the most exciting weeks of school is that of the Student Council Campaigns, when sixteen students are vying for the four top positions available in the school, the President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the Student Council. These sixteen students have been picked from all the students in the school as the best leaders, socially and academically. All are equally qualified to hold the position for which they are campaigning. Each candidate picked a theme around which all his posters, runners, and tags were centered. This theme was also the subject matter for the short skit which was part of their campaign during the assemblies held on Thursday and Friday. Voting took place during the lunch periods Friday, the results were announced ninth period, and another successful week of campaigning was brought to a close.

Mayor Sims gives final instructions before the students take over.

Preceding the elections for student government day, a hectic week took place for the members of the Futurite and Progressive Parties. One would almost think a Student Council campaign was in progress as he viewed the cafeteria and halls. The exotic fluorescent-orange color of the Futurites proved quite beneficial when the final results were announced.

Shortly after the Council meeting was opened, the Futurite Party put their plans into action on Student Government Day.

PREPARATION FOR LIFE

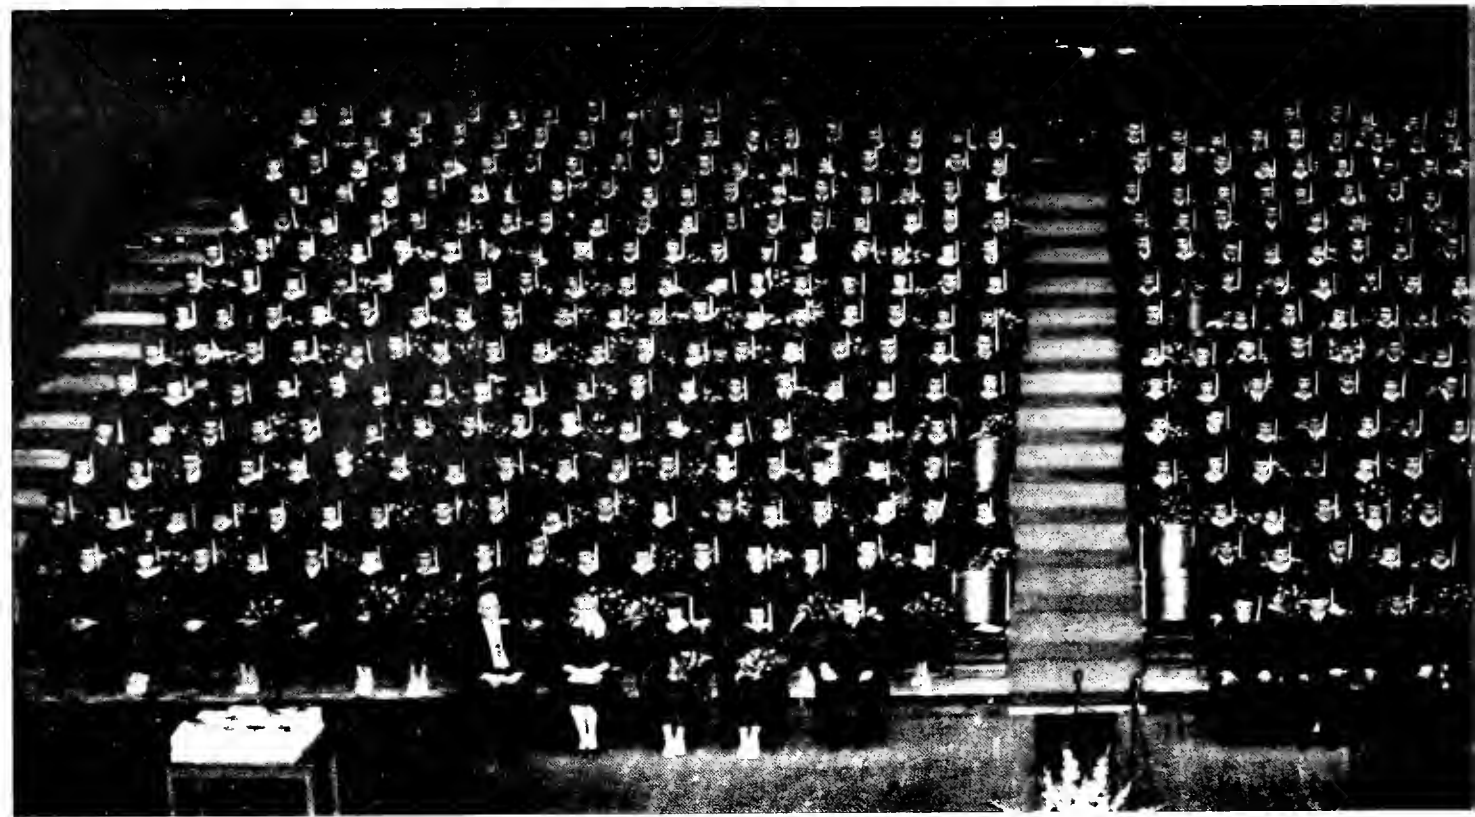

Beginning the festivities which climax the Senior year was Baccalaureate. Held in the auditorium of the Senior High School on April 22, 1958 the senior class marched in to strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," played by Dick Wilson, wearing the traditional dark blue caps and gowns and gold tassles. Singing the usual "Halls of Ivy," "You'll Never Walk Alone," and the "Benediction" was the Senior Class Chorus directed by Mr. Sam Taylor. The two guest speakers were Reverend Maurice Beguin of the First Baptist Church of Euclid who gave the Invocation and the Benediction, and Reverend Fred Bernlohr of Euclid Lutheran Church whose address to the graduating class was entitled "Let No One Despise Thy Youth." The day and the service was beautiful, and each member of the Class of 1958 will long remember his Baccalaureate.

Baccalaureate with friends and family.

How we loved "the Halls of Ivy."

The 1958 Graduating Class of Euclid Senior High School.

Mr. Owens as he certified the class of 1958.

Dave who?

The final steps before graduation.

Which is mine?

Commencement exercises for the Class of 1958 could have been entitled the "end of the beginning," for our high school years have only been the beginning of our future; they have only started us thinking about what our future might contain and how we would like it to develop. The evening drew nigh, and there was never a more beautiful sight when the curtains opened revealing the Class of 1958 in their caps and gowns and the girls with their dozen yellow roses. This was the last time the entire class would ever be together, and the occasion was indelibly impressed upon every Senior's memory.

Today we're graduated, tomorrow we're unemployed.

Many thoughts filled the mind of a graduate concluding his high school career with the recessional at Music Hall. Uppermost, though, is the feeling of pride and happiness to have received a diploma in recognition of all these things and to share these wonderful moments with those who are dear. The future is now ahead filled with success if they apply the knowledge and experiences they have gained at Euclid Senior High. During the past three years, they have been growing in every respect, spiritually, mentally, and physically. But this was just the beginning, the foundation that will help attain even greater heights in the years that will follow. The Class of 1958 will venture into many fields of endeavor, but will always keep Euclid High in their memories and those who make it the wonderful high school to add to the growth of Euclid's young adults.

"... and now they face the future ..."

Hey there, got a match?

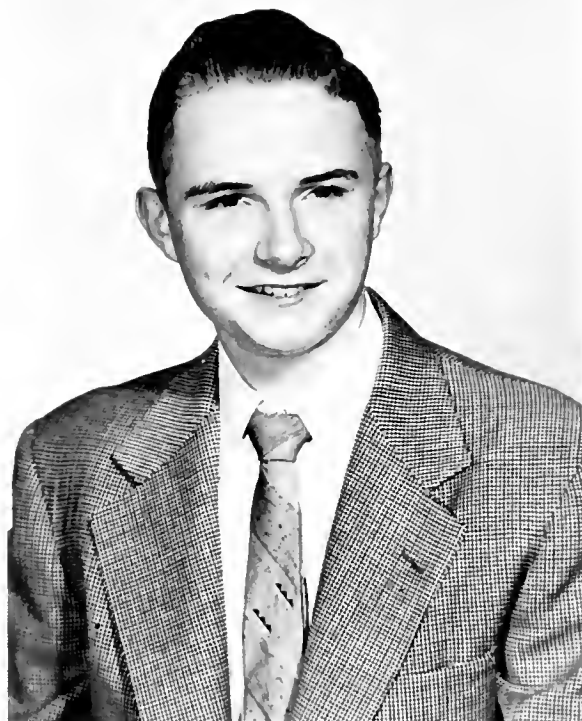

They await the future with great expectation.

I knew in the beginning there would be an end.

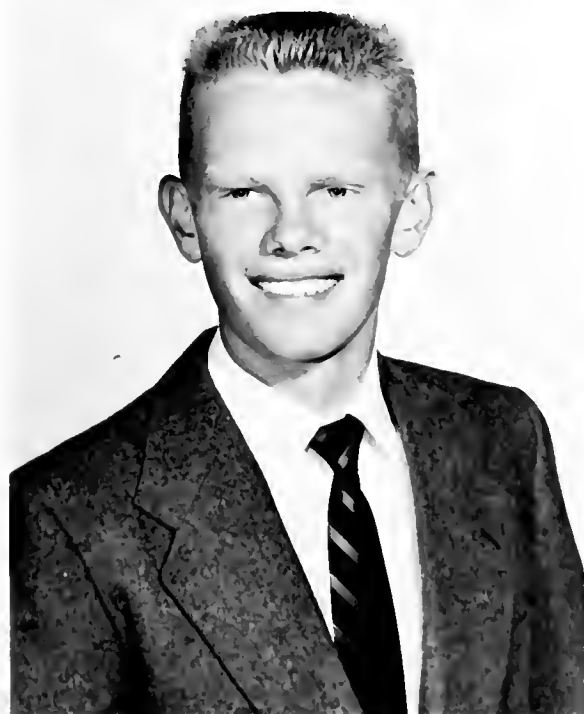

The highest honor a school can bestow upon a graduating Senior is the Valedictory Award, which is based on scholastic achievement. Emerging as number one from the class of 1958 was Robert Pierret, who maintained a straight A average throughout high school. Bob spent most of his three years at Euclid striving to better his grades and fill his mind with knowledge, but he found time to become a member of the Physics Club, Student Council and was selected for membership in the National Honor Society.

Our valedictorian centered his interest around science and mathematics. He displayed his scholastic ability in many tests that he took and brought honor to himself and Euclid. He plans to continue his education at Case Institute of Technology where he will take courses leading to a degree as an engineer or a physicist. Success will follow his footsteps and bring more honor to Euclid.

ROBERT PIERRET, VALEDICTORIAN

ARNE YOUNGBERG, SALUTATORIAN

Arne Youngberg, the Senior with the second highest average of all the 499 in his class, had the honor of receiving the Salutatory Award. Arne maintained straight A's throughout his four years while displaying his leadership ability in Euclid's many organizations. His activities included being President of the Student Council, Sports Editor of the Survey, Captain of the tennis team, a member of National Honor Society, International Quill and Scroll, the basketball team and Letterman's Club.

During his high school years Arne majored in English, history, mathematics, and science. Because of his high ranking scholastic record and outstanding abilities and character Arne received a total of $20,000 in scholarships. Arne has contributed many things to our school and community and will continue to make Euclid proud of him as he looks to the future.

A Poetic Recollection of The Class of '58
The time has come to say good-by,
To golden years at Euclid High.
Before we leave let's reminisce,
Of all the things that we will miss.

"Sophomore Days"

The Sophomore year was just brand new,
When election for officers was due.
For capable students we placed our marker,
Schneider, Murphy, Buchar and Parker.
The Sophomore party was the thing,
Social life started with this fling.
A BIG event was the Friendship Formal,
If you weren't excited, you just weren't normal!
Our Sophomore spirit reached the top,
At the East Tech rally, we yelled a lot.
For the boys we cheered and cheered,
And louder still as game time neared.
When the boys were defeated, we thought we would die,
This was back in the year of Miss Meitzen's
black eye.
The sophomore assembly went so well,
We didn't finish til after the bell.
Our first big year has ended well.
Now of our Junior year I will tell.

"Junior Ways"

A year of experience was all we needed,
Now as Juniors the school we greeted.
Our Junior year and with it brings,
The buying of our high school rings.
The beauty of their simple style,
Beats all the others by a mile.
Mr. Tee was a real live wire,
Our light bulb sale he did inspire.
The profits for our social room,
Will come in handy mighty soon.
Of many events in this school year,
Our party, assembly and dance were dear.
Champions were our gridiron boys,
A highlight causing endless joys.
"In The Zone" a one act play,
Won state honors all the way.
Many old records had to yield,
To our boys in the Spring Sports field.
Although there is much more to say,
This poem must hurry on its way.

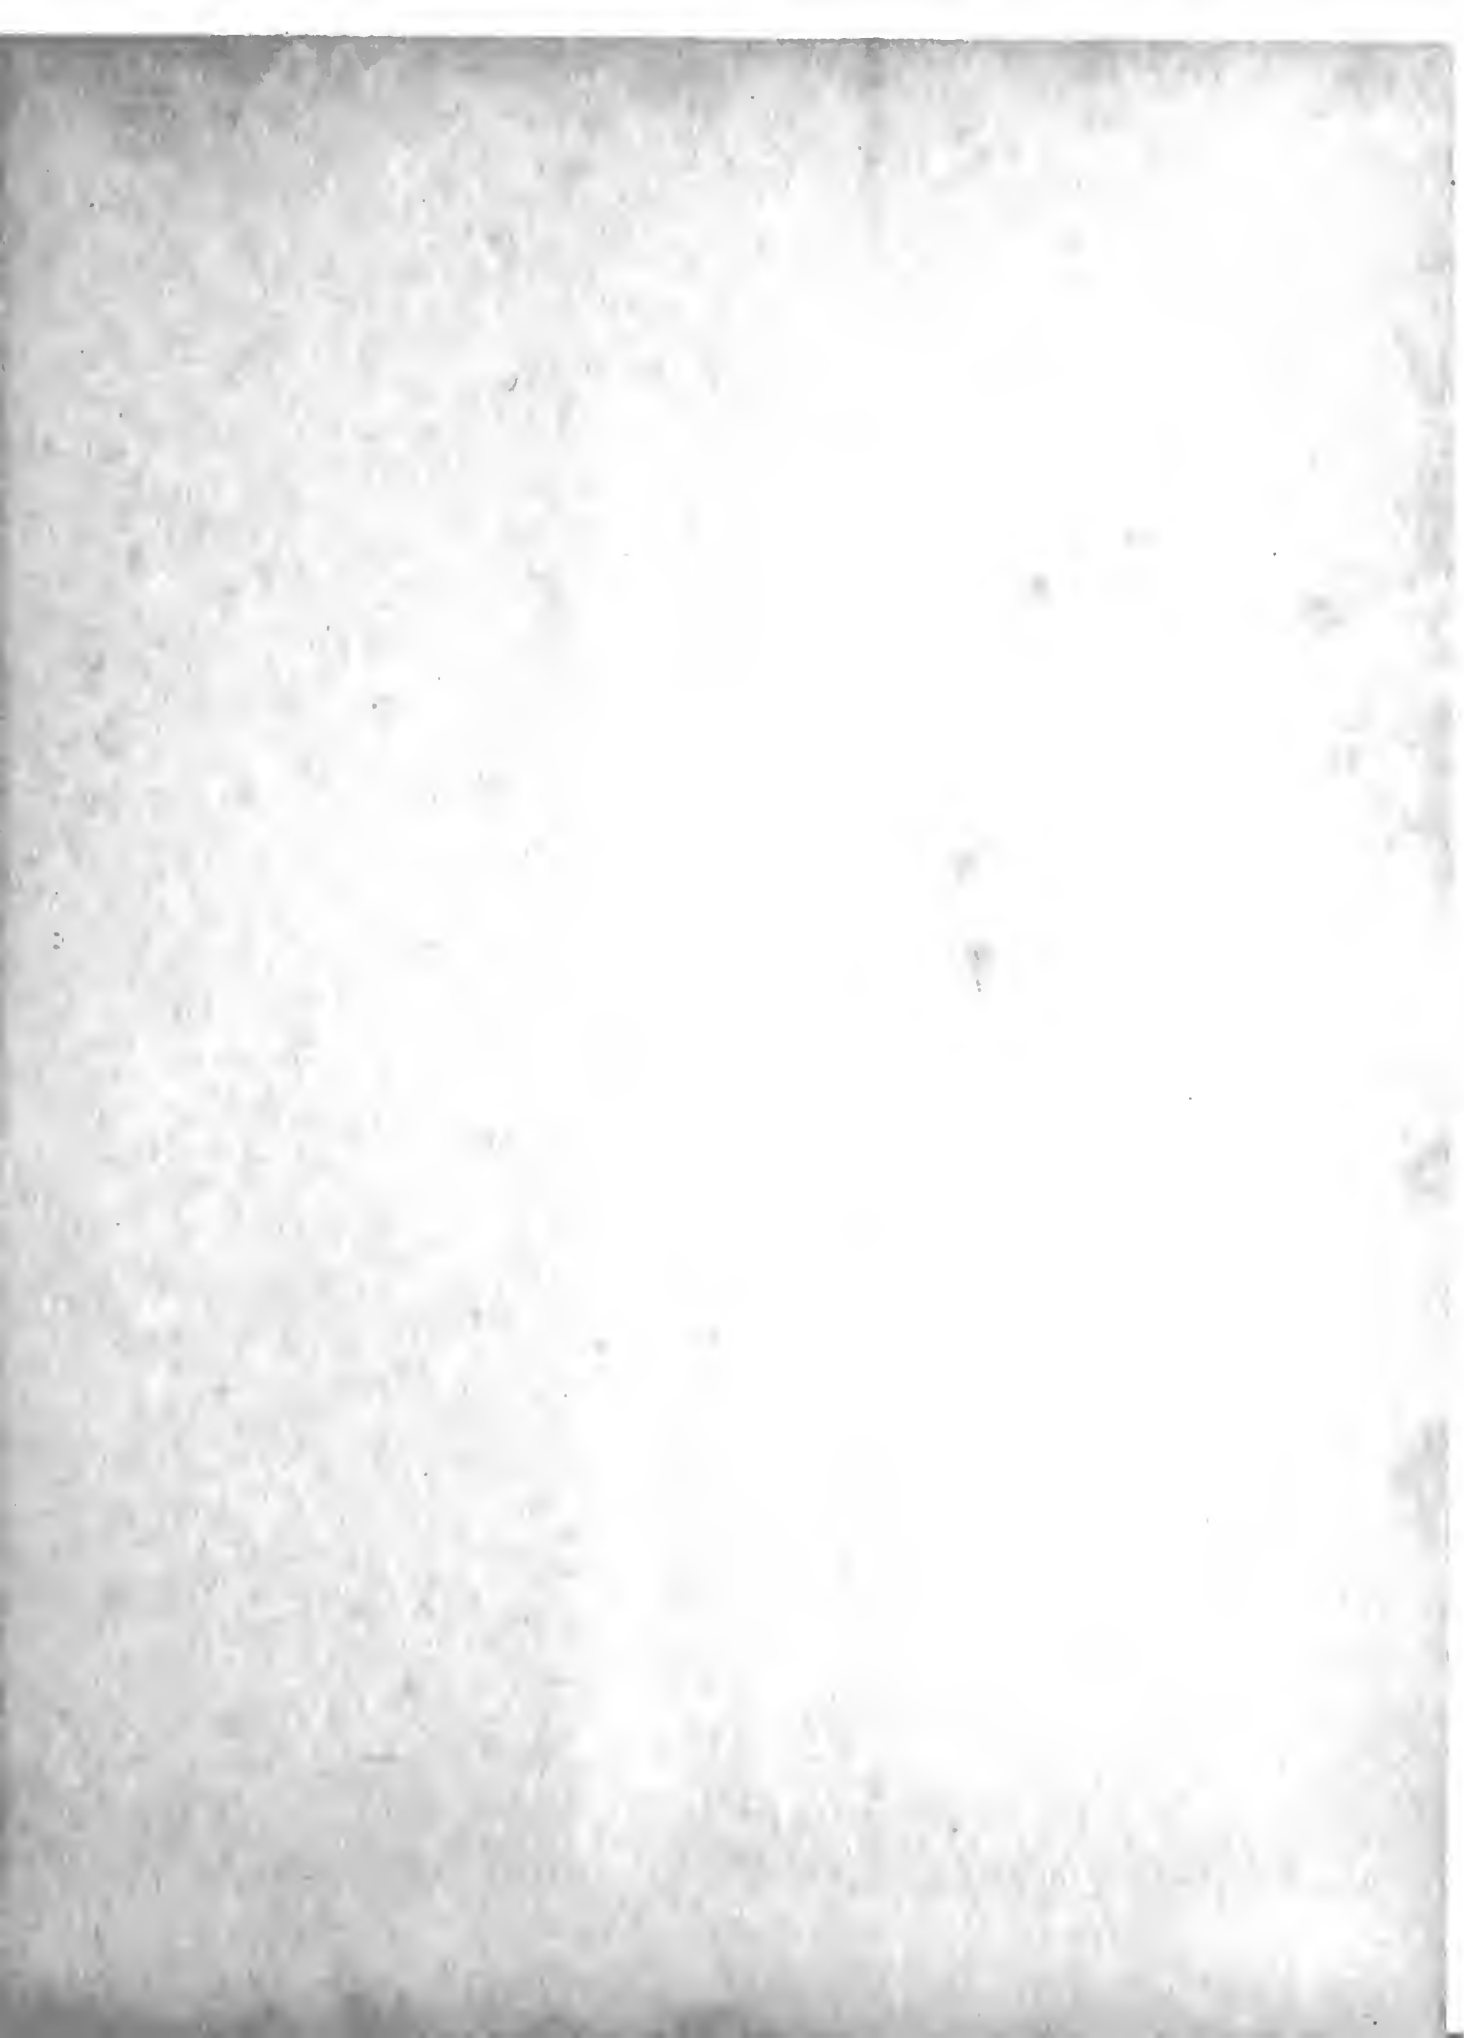

"Senior A's"

A year we've all been waiting for,
We now tell hundreds, maybe more,
That we are Seniors, the very best,
Our class will far outdo the rest.
Everyone settled school well under way,
Now was the time for the Panthers to play.
Our football season was opened at night,

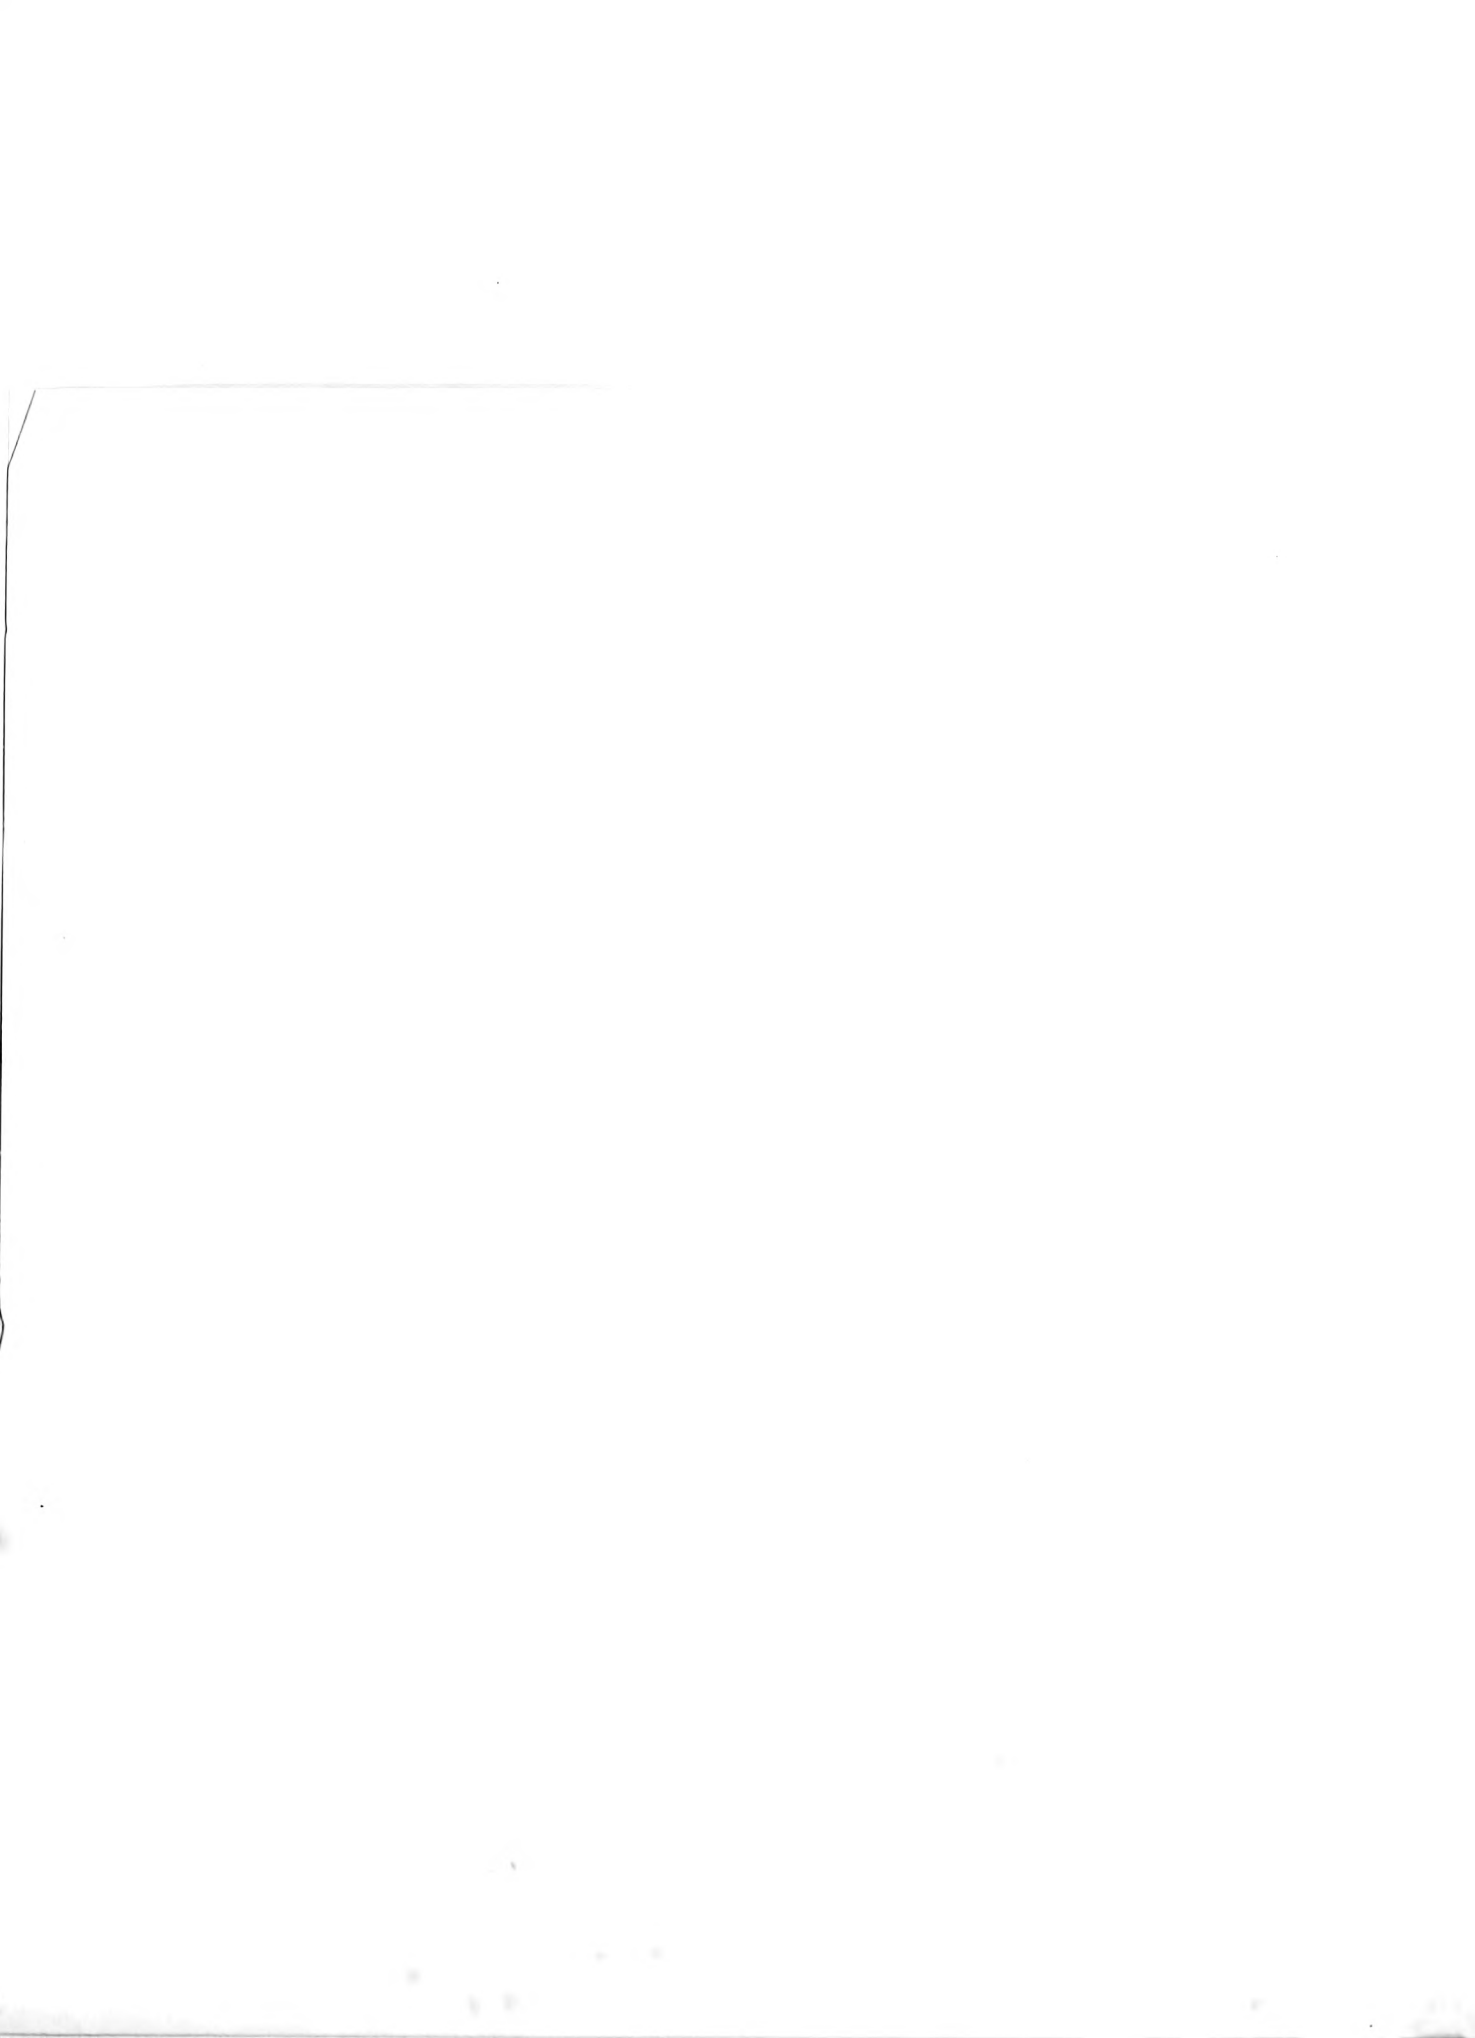

1958 CLASS POEM

The Blue and Gold put up a good fight.
The cheerleaders shouted and stamped their feet,
But St. Joes our rivals were too tough to beat.
L.E.L. Champs the Panthers were not,
But Champions they were of a different lot.
Irene and Kathy, our head majorettes,
Their wonderful marching we can't forget.
Pat and Sue were not outdone,
Leading cheers and having fun.
Our Senior pictures we had done,
Through the summer one by one.
We had them touched and tinted too,
You'd be surprised what they can do!
Now they are ready to give away,
With friendly notes and laughter gay.
The Survey gives the latest news,
From many stories we can choose.
While Myra sits in the editors room,
Snoopy tells who's dating whom.
Posnik, Fantini, Carney and McPeek,
In "How Black Is Gray?" gave all a treat.
Mr. Jenkins who wrote the play,
Worked on it hard both night and day.
Yanchar was picked for the cagers dream team,
And Euclid wrestlers were right on the beam.
They took the League and State titles too,
For they were Champions through and through!
A man so fine in word and deed,
A man whose loss we all will grieve,
This was Ike Driver our greatest fan,
He truly was a grand old man.
His portrait will hang on our social room wall,
To express the gratitude in us all.
The Banquet was a gay affair,
With all the students and faculty there.
Though misty eyes we had to fight,
It didn't affect our appetite!
The Senior Prom, a thrill for all,
As glamorous as a fancy ball!
A valedictorian we'll have to get,
Could it be Arne or Bob Pierret?
Well, the time for recalling has come to a close.
Commencement draws near as everyone knows.
Let's dream together of years gone by,
For tomorrow we must dream alone—you and I.
